FOR NATIONAL SECURITY—

"Japan Rest and Recuperation" For Korean Fighting Men

BY MAJ. GEN. WALTER L. WEIBLE USA
Commanding, Japan Logistical Command

RARELY does a commander in support of combat operations direct a program that gives greater personal satisfaction to all connected with it than the personnel of Japan Logistical Command have received in conducting the Japan Rest and Recuperation Program for our fighting men in Korea.

Maj. Gen. Weible

This program, now in its fifth month of operation, has provided five full days' leave in Japan, on a continuous rotation basis, for men who have been bearing the heaviest burdens of the Korean campaign.

Early in the conflict the need was realized for a program of rest and recuperation for troops fighting on the rugged peninsula. World War II statistics, pointing out the sharp rise of casualties in direct ratio to extended, unrelieved periods in combat, had already established the efficacy of such a program. The late Gen. Walton H. Walker was one of the first advocates of a recuperation program for his men after the UN Forces entered the conflict in Korea.

To satisfy this need for a break from prolonged combat, under the direction of General Headquarters, Far East Command, JLC planned and put into operation the program, later designated "Japan R&R." Plans called for the relief of the maximum number of men that could be spared from units without affecting combat operations.

Approximately 200 men constituted the first group to land in Japan on 30 December 1950. On 16 April, less than four months later, a plane load of veterans put down at Tachikawa Air Base near Tokyo, and the 25,000th R&R man stepped out.

From the start, transportation to and from Japan for leave personnel has been handled by the United States Air Force, without whose complete and well-planned cooperation such a record could never have been achieved.

First planning for the operation was begun by G-1 Section, Japan Logistical Command (then Eighth Army Rear), shortly after we had made large-scale troop commitments in Korea and the possibility of prolonged fighting became evident. It was not, however, until we had built up sufficient reserve troop

Move To Force Vote On Combat Pay Bill

With the Combat Pay bill blocked in the House Committee on Armed Services, a bi-partisan petition was started this week to discharge the bill from the Committee so it can be brought before the House for a vote.

Representative Olin E. Teague (D-Tex.) and Representative Charles E. Potter (R-Mich.) started the petition and in support of it have directed a letter to every member of the House urging that they sign it. If 218 out of the 435 members sign the petition, the bill would be taken from the Committee and brought to the floor of the House.

Supporters consider this a particularly critical time for combat pay, inasmuch as there is the possibility of a cessation of hostilities in Korea which might be followed by a decline in support for such measures.

The bill, which would authorize the payment of $100 a month extra to officers and $50 to enlisted men serving in

ON THE PAY FRONT

President Truman on 12 July sent a message to Congress recommending a seven per cent increase for the Civil Service employees of the government. No mention was made of the Armed Services.

The same day the Senate Civil Service Committee voted to report out a measure giving from 8.4 to 8.8 per cent increases to the classified Civil Service and Postal Employees.

At the beginning of this session, Representative Kilday announced plans for revision of the services' career compensation to correct inequities. In May Representative Van Zandt (R-Pa) introduced a bill to give cost of living increases to service personnel.

To date no action looking toward pay revision for the Services has been taken by the Department of Defense or by either the Senate or House Committees.

Air Force Housing

Secretary of the Air Force Finletter told the House Armed Services Committee this week that living conditions at Air Force stations are inadequate, "especially in the case of dependent housing."

"At a time like the present when personnel have to live for long periods abroad and away from housing centers at home and abroad," Secretary Finletter said, "I believe the matter of dependent housing is one which warrants expenditures of funds to a greater extent than is contemplated in the proposed request."

Except for the base at Limestone, Me., the Department's program now before the House Committee, provides for only a few sets at new posts, and in no instance are there more than five sets proposed.

Mr. Finletter told the Committee that the Air Force is especially badly behind in its support facilities and in particular in its housing and other living conditions. "It is often said," he remarked, "that when the Air Force sets up a base it builds its runways first and when the runways are built it starts looking around for tents in which to live."

Living Facilities

In his discussion of housing conditions, Mr. Finletter said:

"Of course the operations requirements come first. We have to be able to fly the planes. But I do urge upon this Committee that it consider most carefully the backward condition with which the Air Force is faced with respect to living facilities. For the living conditions are definitely very far behind the status of our operational facilities."

"The reason for this is that the base struc-

Ask Senate to Study Services Tax Relief

The Senate Finance Committee has been asked to give consideration to proposals to grant special tax exemptions to all Service persons on active duty.

The group of Senators sponsoring the proposal requested that the committee consider their bill as an amendment to the Revenue Act of 1951, on which the Committee is now holding hearings. It is expected that the Committee will work on the measure until early August before preparing its report.

The request was made to Senator Walter F. George (D-Ga.), chairman of the Finance Committee, by Senator Herbert H. Lehman (D-N.Y.). Senator Lehman spoke on behalf of himself and the co-sponsors of his Service tax relief bill—Senators Robert C. Hendrickson (R-NJ), Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), Harley M. Kilgore (D-W.Va.), and Warren Magnuson (D-Wash.).

Later in the week, Senator George acknowledged Senator Lehman's letter and informed him that he would be pleased to bring the latter's bill to the attention of other members of the Finance Committee so that it may be considered as an amendment to the tax bill.

The measure proposes that all officers and enlisted personnel be allowed a $600 a year additional personal income tax exemption and a special supplementary exemption of $100 for each dependent exclusive of spouse. These exemptions would be somewhat lower than the flat $1,500 a year military exemption granted to all active service personnel during World War II. The only relief now in force for the Armed Services is the $200 a month exemption for those serving in the combat zone in Korea.

When he introduced the bill last February, Senator Lehman told the Senate that "with the rapid expansion of our Armed Forces and with the even greater expansion that is contemplated, it seems apparent to me that this Congress must alleviate inevitable hardship by extending to all members of the Armed Services special income tax relief."

Senator Lehman's letter to Chairman George of the Finance Committee, dated 5 July, is as follows:

"Dear Senator George:

"On February 19th I introduced in the Senate for myself, Senator Hendrickson, Senator Kilgore, Senator Magnuson, and Senator Humphrey, S. 891, a bill to provide additional exemptions from the income tax for persons in the active service of the Armed Forces of the United States. This bill was referred to your Committee.

"Since the Finance Committee has now begun consideration of H.R. 4473, the Revenue Act of 1951, I and the co-sponsors of S. 891 respectfully request consideration of our bill as an amendment to the Revenue Act.

"We are aware that last year during consideration of tax legislation your Committee did not consider that the facts available at the time justified extending income tax exemptions to all members of the Armed Forces on active duty. At that time it was undoubtedly

New York Times—"It should be remembered . . . that a cease-fire is not a peace agreement. We have accepted and embraced the opportunity to put an end to any avoidable loss of life. That does not mean that we are ready to accept a political and moral surrender. The cease-fire negotiation may be long. The negotiation of a just peace will inevitably be much, much longer and much more difficult unless there is a sign of better faith and better purpose than has been shown by the Communists thus far."

Christian Science Monitor—"The great danger of the moment is less the possibility of a breakdown in the forthcoming Kaesong truce talks than the actuality of a let-down on the home front and the timidity of Congressmen who ought to stand against it."

New York Herald Tribune—"No one can predict, now, what the situation in Korea will be when the month of July ends. But whether matters may look hopeful or gloomy there, the great threat to American security will not have been dispelled—it could at best only be checked in Korea. The true test of American ability to meet the probing, thrusting force of Russia and Communism lies in a great core of military strength at home, accompanied by the development of armed might among America's allies abroad."

"This is not a question of a single campaign in the field, nor can it be said to be a sharply defined goal: it is, rather, a long process, that must be pressed with vigor and intelligence, perhaps for many years."

(By Talburt, Scripps-Howard Newspapers)

HOW CRAZY CAN YOU GET?

Augusta, Ga., Chronicle—"Nothing could be more dangerous to our future security and well-being than for the American people; once the fighting in Korea is over, to assume that the breaking off of this costly police action would usher in an era of world-wide peace and amity. . . . In the interest of our own security, our preparedness plans must continue without any interruption and without any let-down."

Baltimore, Md., Sun—"Friends of the Marines in Congress are running the risk of killing the corps with kindness. The House Armed Services Committee has voted out a bill which, if enacted, would destroy the unique nature of the organization on which its strength depends. . . . The effect of the House bill would be to set up another virtually autonomous branch of the armed services like the Army, the Navy and the Air Force. That couldn't be done without robbing the Marine Corps of its peculiar virtues. Calmer friends of the corps should see to it that extravagant claims are pared down so that the true spirit of the organization is preserved."

Newport, R. I., News—"The enemies of the Marine Corps will get in their work. Just why there should be objection to this bill is impossible for the average American to understand. . . . The Marine Corps does work that no other service does; it is highly skilled in amphibious warfare and air support of troops. Its commandant's voice would be highly valuable in any planning that the Joint Chiefs were called on to do. The Marine Corps is the only one of the four armed services named in the unification law which put all services under the Department of Defense that is not represented on the Joint Chiefs of Staff."

THE WAR IN KOREA

GROUND action this week in Korea was again limited, for the most part, to light contact and minor patrol clashes, though on the central front there were several sharp engagements, as each side sought to improve its positions, pending the outcome of cease-fire negotiations at the Kaesong conference. There were no significant changes in the battle line during the week.

The most stubborn Red resistance encountered by Allied patrols was northwest of Yonchon, where the enemy massed hundreds of rounds at United Nations forces. Northeast of Kumhwa there were several inconclusive engagements as opposing forces fought for dominating terrain features.

Despite the worst weather of the year, with rain and heavy clouds which greatly hampered air operations and reduced visibility, there were several air battles in which at least eight enemy MIG planes were destroyed and others damaged by American Sabre Jet fighters and light and medium bombers.

Using radar aiming technique Allied bombers continued their attacks on enemy airfields throughout North Korea, to prevent the use of the fields in connection with any future offensive that may be launched by the Reds in the event that current peace talks prove unproductive. Because of rain, fog and heavy cloud conditions the results of these attacks were largely unobserved.

The Department of Defense has released an estimate of enemy casualties for the first year of the Korean war. From the outbreak of hostilities on 25 June 1950 through 25 June 1951 the aggregate personnel losses of the enemy are estimated at 1,191,422, about three times the total military casualties of the United Nations forces, including the South Koreans.

Of the enemy casualties those of the North Koreans total 606,219, with 371,309 killed or wounded, 88,819 sick or injured, and 146,091 prisoners of war. The total Chinese Communist losses since their entry into the war last November amount to 585,203, including 492,640 killed and wounded, 75,524 non-battle casualties, and 17,039 prisoners of war.

On the ground in Korea this week in the extreme west there was very little action as both sides refrained from hostilities in the general vicinity of Kaesong, site of the armistice negotiations. Eighth Army patrols reported only very light enemy contact in the area north and west of the Imjin River. There were minor skirmishes west of Korangpo-ri, where Allied patrols encountered platoon-sized enemy units.

In the areas north and northwest of Yonchon enemy infantry units, supported by heavy mortar and artillery fire, put up stubborn resistance. More than 900 rounds were fired by Red mortar and artillery batteries against advancing Allied troops.

A probing attack launched by the enemy against Allied troops northeast of Kumhwa and south of Pyonggang was repulsed. Allied patrols were stopped by stiff opposition of enemy units southwest of Kumhwa, where a heavy volume of small arms and automatic weapons fire was received. Moderate enemy resistance was encountered by other Allied patrols south of Kumhwa and north of Hwachon.

Contact with the enemy was also reported northwest of Yanggu. Northeast of that town an enemy regiment stubbornly resisted the Allied advance, but later made a limited withdrawal, while continuing to harass United Nations forces with small arms and automatic weapons fire.

A heavy volume of mortar and artillery fire was met by Allied troops north of Inje. An undetermined number of the enemy attacked South Korean troops near the east coast, northwest of Kansong. The attack was repulsed and the enemy dispersed. Other enemy groups were encountered west of Kansong.

Allied Naval bombardment of enemy shore installations and attacks by carrier-based planes continued throughout the week, though the air effort was severely limited by exceptionally adverse weather conditions.

The U. S. Destroyer Cunningham provided direct naval gunfire support for South Korean troops at the extreme eastern end of the battle line. Firing hundreds of 5-inch shells the destroyer hit troop concentrations, gun batteries, railroad rolling stock and supplies. Five enemy-occupied buildings, set afire by the naval gunfire, burned for hours after they were hit. South of Kosong the Cunningham dispersed an enemy platoon concealed in a wooded area.

The U. S. Destroyer Escort Seiverling, the American Patrol Frigate Sausalito, and the British Patrol Frigate Morecambe Bay hit railroads and highways near the east coast North Korean ports of Chongjin, Songjin, and Churongjang. Railroad bridges and tracks were knocked out.

The Destroyers Blue and Evans and the Destroyer Escort Naifeh continued the long bombardment of the enemy-held port of Wonsan on the east coast, shelling troop and supply centers. The warships teamed with Air Force night flyers to attack Wonsan transportation targets.

Marine pilots flying Corsair fighter-bombers from the U. S. Escort Carrier Sicily off the west coast inflicted heavy casualties on enemy troops and knocked out artillery and machine gun positions near Kumsong on the central sector. Other flights scored hits on enemy supply centers south of Chinnampo. Carrier-based naval planes struck enemy troops and supply areas in the vicinity of Haeju.

Atrocious flying weather this week reduced Allied air activity in Korea to about one-half the normal operations. For several months the Far East Air Force has averaged about 1,000 sorties per day in good weather, but this week the average dropped to around 500. The armistice conference at Kaesong was not a factor in the curtailment of air activity and the intensity of the attacks whenever weather permitted was undiminished. During the week there were several engagements with enemy aircraft in which the Reds lost at least eight planes, with others damaged.

On Sunday, 8 July, 20 MIG jets attacked 30 Allied F-51 propeller-driven Mustangs, which were returning after an attack on an airfield at Kangdong in Northwest Korea. The Mustangs called in 35 F-86 Sabre Jets that had been escorting B-29 medium bombers on marshalling yard strikes in the same general area.

In 10 minutes of fighting three MIGs were seen to crash and explode, and hits were observed on two others. None of the Allied planes was damaged. The fighting started just north of the North Korean capital city of Pyongyang, considerably south of the locality where enemy planes are most frequently encountered.

On Tuesday, 10 July two MIG-15 jet fighters were shot down near Sinanju in the northwest corner of Korea, near the Manchurian border. American B-29 medium bombers dropping demolition bombs on the Sinanju airfield were attacked by a flight of MIGs, which in turn were taken under attack by a formation of F-86 Sabre Jets, flying cover for the bombers. In the ensuing fight one enemy plane was shot down by a gunner of a B-29 and another by a Sabre jet pilot.

In a spirited 20-minute battle on Wednesday, 11 July, three enemy planes were shot down by American flyers and a fourth was damaged. The engagement began with an attack by 21 F-80 Shooting Star fighter-bombers on an ammunition factory near the Yalu River in Northwest Korea. Enemy jets attempted interception and were met and fought off by 13 F-86 Sabre Jets flying cover for the Shooting Stars.

More than a dozen North Korean airfields were hit during the week by Allied bombers and fighter-bombers. Much of the bombing was done by radar, with unobserved results. Occasionally a break in the weather permitted visual bombing and in these cases excellent coverage was obtained.

Railroad marshalling yards were hit by

THE EUROPEAN THEATER

FIRST official announcement that our engineer troops have for some time been engaged in construction work on the new airfields in French North Africa was made this week, on the return to Washington of General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Chief of Staff, U. S. Air Force. The subject has been kept under wraps for months since Secretary Finletter's cautious reference to "negotiations" for a number of bases eastward from Casablanca. It now is apparent that actual construction work (at what is spoken of as "amazing speed") began before the negotiations were officially completed; secrecy has been due in part to French official nervousness over the recent elections. On the still more delicate issue of numerous airbases in France itself for the use of North Atlantic Treaty Organization elements (more specifically American elements), General Vandenberg makes only guarded comment, to the effect that when one has to deal with many nations, progress is slower than he could wish, but that it continues. During the week the Defense Department announced dispatch of the first U. S. air unit definitely designated as support for General Eisenhower, as distinguished from numerous units in our European command. This is the 433d Troop Carrier Wing (48 planes manned by Ohio reservists), Col. Harry Hopp commanding. It will be followed by a fighter unit some weeks hence.

The first of our NATO fighter units for Britain will presumably be an F-86 (Sabre) group, whose departure in the fall is already planned. The reason for delay in dispatching fighter units is well known. There has been demand for them in Korea and in home defense alike. With the all-weather fighters (F-94 and the new F-89) still unavailable, the F-86 units have been the main reliance. Announcement of the plan for sending this first group in the autumn implies that the new models are coming along.

Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, G-3, lately announced as the new Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations and Administration and recommended for lieutenant-general, is nearing the end of a swift, unpublicized tour of inspection of military aid requirements and achievements in the Mediterranean and Middle East. Accompanied by Brig. Gen. G. H. Olmsted, Deputy Assistant Chief of Staff G-4 for foreign military assistance, Brig. Gen. Richard C. Partridge of G-2, and several junior staff officers, he has visited Rome, Trieste, Athens, Ankara, and Tehran; he plans to return via Lisbon without extending his tour beyond the specified needs of his mission.

General Eisenhower's command will receive this fall the two additional divisions which were promised long ago. As predicted, they are two National Guard Divisions, the Twenty-eighth (Pennsylvania), Maj. Gen. Daniel B. Stockler commanding, and Forty-third (Connecticut, Rhode Island, and Vermont), Maj. Gen. Kenneth F. Cramer commanding. Their tank companies are receiving intensified training now, at the new armored combat training area at Camp Irwin, Calif., and the divisions apparently will remain in this country long enough to participate in the September maneuvers planned by the Field Forces, leaving for Europe shortly afterward. This movement will complete the provision of six U. S. divisions (counting the Constabulary as one), as our contribution to the NATO establishment, and the announcement itself puts General Eisenhower in a stronger position for his pressure on other NATO nations to speed up their own contributions to his 1951 force. The two National Guard divisions' movement to Europe will balance the recent movement of two others (Fortieth and Forty-fifth) to Japan. This will leave on extended active duty in the United States two more Guard divisions now in camp (Thirty-first from Alabama and Mississippi, and Forty-seventh from Minnesota and North Dakota). It is expected that two, or perhaps three, other National Guard divisions will be called out in the fall, but the Army still does not indicate the exact time or their identity. Manifestly, developments in Korea may affect planning for Europe.

The western nations took concerted steps last Monday for bettering relations with Western Germany. President Truman's recommendation that Congress terminate the long-standing state of war was timed to match completed action to that effect by British Commonwealth Nations, Italy, and others. This is not a peace treaty, to be sure, even on the part of the western nations, but it is accepted by West Germany as evidence of good intentions. Within 24 hours it induced renewed effort by Chancellor Adenauer toward the German 12-division program proposed by Gen. Hans Speidel and his German associates as West Germany's contribution to NATO and tentatively approved by the Allied military committee. There remains a wide chasm between that program and the French idea for a European army (with German units limited to undersized units) and time will be needed to bridge it. In Berlin at midweek there was a gratifying gesture of comradeship by the Berliners themselves in their dedication of a monument to the 75 men (31 Americans, 39 Britons, five Germans) who lost their lives in the defiant and triumphant Berlin Airlift operation of 1948-49.

The only personnel change of the week in SHAPE's setup was the retirement of Lt. Gen. E. B. E. Goertz as commander of NATO ground forces in Denmark, and his replacement by Lt. Gen. E. G. V. Moller.

East of Germany the week's developments had their melancholy aspects. The "conviction" of William Oatis, Associated Press chief in Czechoslovakia, whittles down to three the western correspondents of Middle Europe, none of them American. The baseless Hungarian declaration against two more of our diplomatic agents brought their withdrawal, attended by an unusually embittered note of American comment on Hungary's conduct. In Finland, where the recent free elections once more provided a thrashing for the Communists, the resentful Communist party has begun complaining about American bases in Norway; it is feared as a prelude to new oppressive measures by Moscow against this courageous small nation. In Bulgaria and in Rumania, the two premiers, puppets of Moscow as they are, apparently have not responded rapidly enough to stringpulling from the Kremlin; Chervenkov and Groza are both reported to have been deprived of their powers.

Pick 51 New Generals Promote 7 Others

The President this week nominated 51 Army colonels—two of them permanent lieutenant colonels and one a non-Regular—to the temporary rank of colonel and named Lt. Gen. John E. Hull for four-star rank to succeed General Wade H. Haislip as Vice Chief of Staff.

General Haislip, who has held that position since 1 Oct. 1949, will retire 31 July after more than 43 years' military service. He will become Governor of the U. S. Soldier's Home in Washington, D. C., succeeding Maj. Gen. H. K. Loughry, USA-Ret., former Chief of Finance, presently a patient at Walter Reed Army Hospital.

In addition to four-star status for General Hull, who has been Deputy Chief of Staff for Administration and who will be replaced in this position by Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, Operations, the President asked the Senate to confirm the nominations of two other officers to be full generals. They are:

Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Commanding General of the Eighth Army in Korea, and Lt. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, Chief of Staff, Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe.

The President sent to the Senate these additional nominations affecting general officers of the Army:

Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing, Commandant of the Army War College, Carlisle Barracks, Pa., to succeed Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, who retires on 31 July, as Commanding General, Sixth Army, Presidio of San Francisco. (General Swing will be succeeded by Lt. Gen. Edward M. Almond, Commanding General, X Corps in Korea.)

General Taylor to hold the rank of Lieutenant General as successor to General Hull, with the position redesignated from Deputy Chief of Staff for Administration, to Deputy Chief of Staff, Operations and Administration.

Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, former Chief of the Chemical Corps, recently named Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, Personnel, as successor to Lt. Gen. Edward H. Brooks, presently Second Army Commander, to be a lieutenant general.

Maj. Gen. Andrew D. Bruce, Commandant of the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va., to be a lieutenant general.

Maj. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, Chief of Engineers, also to be a lieutenant general. The return of General Almond to the United States to head the War College means that two corps commands were made vacant in Korea, since it has been announced that Lt. Gen. Frank W. Milburn, Commanding General of I Corps, will be assigned to the Office of the Chief of Army Field Forces, Ft. Monroe, Va.

Lt. Gen. John B. Coulter, who had been Deputy Commander of the Eighth Army, was ordered to duty in the Office of the Chief of Staff to advise the Department of the Army on Korean affairs.

Photography Winners

Army personnel won top honors in the Third Interservice Photography Contest, with the Navy and Air Force finishing second and third, respectively.

The annual contest is sponsored by the Special Services divisions of the Army, Navy (including Marine Corps and Coast Guard) and the Air Force. It is designed to stimulate interest and promote technical skill in photography as an Armed Forces recreational activity.

The 360 photographs in the final competition represented the best of more than 1,850 entries submitted to the Departments of the Army, Navy, and Air Force after preliminary contests.

Hospital Mate Jerry Rickerson, jr., of 1344 East 55th Street, Los Angeles, Calif., assigned to the staff of the Fourteenth Naval District at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, won the "Best of the Show" trophy for a glimpse of service life entitled "Rest Period."

The Army will be presented the perpetual Interservice Photography Trophy, donated by the ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL, at noon Monday, 16 July, by LeRoy Whitman, editor of the publication, at a ceremony on the concourse of the Pentagon, Washington, D. C. An exhibition of prize winning photographs will be opened to the public at the same time and will remain on display at the Pentagon until 27 July.

On 2 Aug. the exhibition will open at the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C., and will remain on view until 27 Aug.

Judges of the contest included Edward Steichen, curator of photography, Museum of Modern Art, New York City; Jacob Deschin, photographic editor of the New York Times, and Arthur Rothstein, chief photographer of Look magazine.

Winners of the contest are:

First, second and third prize winners will be presented with silver bowls. Those awarded honorable mention will receive a silver goblet. Certificates of achievement will be given to each winner and those who received honorable mention.

Revoke GI Rights Of Regular Officers

Thousands of Service officers who have been attending schools and colleges in their off-duty time have been notified that the Veterans Administration will no longer be responsible for payment of educational benefits under the GI Bill of Rights.

Exactly how many are affected is not known, but there are more than 800 in the Washington, D. C. area alone.

The order resulted from a strict interpretation of the law, it being held that to be entitled to GI benefits a person must not only have received a discharge but he must also have been physically separated from the Service.

Most of those now being denied the benefits served in the war as AUS, Reserves, or National Guard, and accepted Regular commissions while still on active duty or on terminal leave. The VA has held that the discharges from their Reserve status was a "presumptive or constructive" discharge and does not entitle them to VA benefits. Another group hit by the new order are those enlisted men who were discharged before the expiration of their enlistment so that they could accept a commission and continue on duty as an officer. Presumably it would apply to those who win battlefield commissions.

The Veterans Administration explains that the ruling is not a new one, that the procedure now being enforced was the one intended all along. They say, however, that some Regional officers had interpreted it erroneously and accepted many who should not have been certified as eligible and that all their new order does is to require all Regional Offices to adhere to the same restrictive policy.

It is explained that the situation was discovered when an officer who had been on duty in Washington, D. C., and certified for attendance in his off-duty time at a college there, was subsequently transferred to Georgia. At his new station he applied to the VA office for certification to continue his spare time education, but that office held that he was not entitled to it and referred the case to the Central Office which issued the order nationwide.

The officers who had been going to school under the bill were benefiting only by having their tuition paid; they did not draw subsistence allowances as do civilians.

Officers who actually accepted discharges and went home and subsequently returned to active duty are not affected by the new ruling and may continue their spare-time education under the VA.

A number of bills have been introduced in Congress to correct the situation, but the committees have not yet scheduled any of them for hearings.

To Expose High Rents

The Senate Preparedness Subcommittee stated this week that it will soon issue a report on its investigation of housing for military personnel and their dependents in areas around six major Army posts.

The investigations were made following numerous complaints to the subcommittee that exorbitant rents were being charged officers and enlisted men in surrounding communities. The posts under study were: Ft. Jackson, S. C., Camp Breckinridge, Ky., Camp Atterbury, Ind., Camp Pickett, Va., Camp Rucker, Ala., and Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

Senator Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.) said: "Committee investigators found serious conditions at some of these camps."

In its 16 earlier reports on indoctrination centers the subcommittee cited the lack of housing for dependents as one of the unsatisfactory conditions which they recommended be eliminated. However, it was stated this week that the committee states this "must, of necessity, take some period of time."

Army Cited For Safety

The Army has received its fourth National Safety Council Award of Honor for Distinguished Service to Safety.

Name 1197 to Lt. Col.; Promote 498 to Capt.

The Army this week announced the temporary promotion of 1197 majors to the rank of lieutenant colonel and 498 first lieutenants to the rank of captain.

Also released were the names of 45 captains of the Chaplains Corps, promoted to the temporary rank of major.

Announced also were the recommendations of 36 WAC officers for permanent advancement to the rank of major; 15 WAC majors for promotion to permanent lieutenant colonel; and 5 WAC officers for permanent promotion to captain.

Coincidental with the release of new lists of temporary promotions this week, Army officials anticipated early announcement of new promotions to the temporary grade of major and there were reports that a list of Medical Service selections might be released in time for publication next week.

The latest temporary promotions to lieutenant colonel, announced in Special Orders No. 135, 7 July, went to 770 Regular officers and 385 non-Regulars on the Army Promotion List. The cut-off date for the line officers was 27 Aug. 1945. There were 26 Regular and 16 non-Regular chaplains promoted to temporary lieutenant colonel and the cut-off date was 31 Dec. 1946.

Promoted to the temporary rank of major were 8 Regular chaplains and 37 non-Regulars, whose advancement is announced in Special Orders No. 138, 11 July. The cut-off date was 31 March 1944.

There were 99 Regular officers and 398 non-Regulars promoted to the temporary rank of captain, announced also in Special Orders No. 138. The date of rank for this zone of consideration was 22 Oct. 1945. One chaplain, Edwin F. Hall, jr., a National Guard officer, was promoted to the temporary rank of captain. The cut-off date was 31 June 1949.

New Chief of Finance

To fill a post vacant since the 31 May retirement of Maj. Gen. Eugene Foster, President Truman this week nominated Col. Bickford E. Sawyer, Fourth Army Comptroller, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., to be Chief of Finance with the rank of major general.

Colonel Sawyer is Number 444 on the Army Promotion List of permanent colonels, according to the Army Register of 1 Jan. 1951. He is the third senior Finance Corps officer.

He will be 57 years of age on 1 Aug. and has been on active duty since 13 May 1917, when he began service as a reserve second lieutenant of Cavalry.

He was commissioned in the Regular Army in 1920 and was detailed to the Finance Department in 1928, being permanently transferred to that branch in 1930.

A 1938 graduate of the Army Industrial College, Colonel Sawyer saw subsequent service primarily in the Office of the Chief of Finance. He was made a temporary lieutenant colonel 13 days after Pearl Harbor.

When the original Women's Army Auxiliary Corps was created in 1942, its founders asked the Chief of Finance for assignment of a specially qualified fiscal officer to deal with the financial problems incident to a new branch of the service. Colonel Sawyer was assigned the job of organizing Finance matters for the WAAC. After that, he returned to the Office of the Chief of Finance until 31 Dec., when he was made chief of the Fiscal Branch of the Eighth Service Command, with headquarters in Dallas.

In June, 1944, Colonel Sawyer was sent to the Pacific Theater. He served as a fiscal officer overseas until 1 Sept. 1947.

Returning to this country, he became deputy comptroller for the Fourth Army, with headquarters at Fort Sam Houston, Tex. He received his Regular Army colonelcy, 11 March 1948.

In October, 1949, he was designated Fourth Army comptroller, the post he now holds.

Colonel Sawyer has been awarded the Legion of Merit and twice has been given the Army Commendation Ribbon.

Before World War I, he attended Norwich University in Northfield, Vt. In 1937, he received a Bachelor of Law degree from LaSalle University, Chicago, Ill. He is a member of the Society for the Advancement of Management and of the Society of Military Accountants and Statisticians.

24th Inf. Div. Reunion

The fourth annual reunion of the 24th Infantry Division Association will be held 10, 11 and 12 Aug. in Detroit, Mich. Details may be obtained from Vice President Kenwood Ross, Third National Bank Building, Springfield 3, Mass.

First Cavalry Reunion

Hundreds of rotating 1st Cavalry Division troopers are being invited to become life members of the division's national association before leaving Korea.

Meanwhile, executive committeemen of the association are whipping together fabulous plans for an annual reunion at San Antonio, Tex., between 1 and 3 Sept. Many of the expected reunioners will undoubtedly be youthful veterans of the Cavalry's Korean campaign.

In Korea, at the Cavalry's replacement center, outgoing rotatees are being invited to become lifetime members of the 1st Cavalry Division Association for $10.

The Association was organized in the Admiralty Islands in 1944 as a perpetual memorial to dead and living members of the unit. Only wartime fighters of the division are eligible for membership.

Lt. Col. Charles C. Young, incumbent president of the association, has written all association members regarding the September meeting, outlining countless social and business features to be presented.

The association's San Antonio chapter, led by Brig. Gen. Rex E. Chandler (Ret.), chapter president, is arranging accommodations for visiting troopers. Expected to attend the fourth annual meeting are Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, USA, Cavalry leader in Korea until February, and scores of former top-ranking commanders.

Col. Edmund P. Stone (Ret.), World War II Inspector General of the Cavalry and now the association's registrar, announced that prospective reunion attendants should contact Capt. Don H. Walton, Box 201, Grayson street station, San Antonio, to make arrangements for accommodations.

Commission for CMH Winner

M/Sgt. Stanley T. Adams, who received the Medal of Honor for heroism in Korea from President Truman on 5 July, has been given a direct Army commission as a Second Lieutenant of Infantry, Reserve.

In a Pentagon ceremony on 9 July, the gold bars of a second lieutenant were pinned on the new officer by Col. Ned D. Moore, who commanded the 19th Infantry Regiment at the time of Sergeant Adams' heroic actions. Colonel Moore is now assigned to the Civil Relations Office in the Office, Chief of Information.

The 29-year old Infantryman won the Nation's highest military award while a member of Company A, 19th Infantry Regiment, 24th Infantry Division, when, although outnumbered 20 to one, he led a night bayonet charge against the enemy and routed them after an hour of fierce fighting.

Test Desert Clothing

Specially designed Army desert clothing will be tested under severe hot weather conditions at Yuma, Ariz. during the remainder of the summer.

A test detachment, consisting of four officers and 59 enlisted men from the Army Quartermaster Board, Ft. Lee, Va., has arrived at the Army's Yuma Test Station to begin the tests. The detachment will be joined later by a civilian meteorologist and two technical observers from the Office of The Quartermaster General, Washington, D. C.

The tests are an extension of studies relating to clothing for desert wear which were carried out in Death Valley, Calif., last summer by a group of Quartermaster Corps scientists. Members of the detachment will wear clothing items designed on principles worked out in these studies in order to make a practical evaluation of the designs. Average daily maximum temperatures of 106 degrees are expected during July and August at Yuma, where peak temperatures of 120 degrees have been recorded in mid-summer.

Experimental clothing to be tested include a long-visored cotton cap and cotton head cloth; loose-fitting cotton jacket, trousers, and underwear; suspenders, wool cushion-sole socks, and tropical combat boots with nylon uppers and ventilating insoles.

The cap, jacket, and trousers are made of a relatively thick, but loosely woven fabric. Last summer's tests indicated that this design assisted body cooling by promoting sweat evaporation and at the same time protecting the skin from abrasion or heat injury from contact with sand or rocks, which attain temperatures as high as 160 degrees.

The studies at Death Valley last summer demonstrated that better protection is afforded in hot desert areas by clothing that covers the entire body, rather than abbreviated garments such as quarter-sleeve shirts and shorts. Loose clothing, it was found, tends to insulate the wearer from the air which is hotter than the body and also helps to block out heat radiated from the terrain.

Gen. Wedemeyer Joins Firm

Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer will become vice-president and director of the Avco Manufacturing Corporation on 1 Sept., it was announced this week by Victor Emmanuel, president of Avco.

Avco is the parent company of Crosley Radio and Television Companies, Bendix Washing Machine Co., New Idea Farm Equipment Co., and Locomotive-Spencer Division, manufacturers of airplane engines.

Cite Press Advisory Chief

Lt. Col. Walter J. Preston, jr. has been awarded the Legion of Merit for meritorious service in Korea as commanding officer of the 159th Field Artillery Battalion, 25th Infantry Division.

The award was presented by Col. Geo. Patrick Welch, Public Information Officer, General Headquarters, Far East Command. Colonel Preston is presently serving as Chief of the Press Advisory Division, Public Information Office.

Combat Pay

the combat zone, was sent to Congress early in this session. The House committee has never touched it. The Senate held two hearings on it in April.

Senator Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, told THE JOURNAL this week that he believes a majority of his committee favors the bill and that he is ready to take it up at any time. However, he stated that he has been given to understand that the House Committee does not intend to act on it, adding that "if that is true, there is no need of the Senate Committee acting on it." He said he would take it up whenever the House Committee acts on it.

Representative Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, has not scheduled any hearings or meetings on combat pay, nor will he say whether he intends to do so. In response to a query from THE JOURNAL this week, he replied: "I will not make any comment on combat pay until the committee gets around to the bill."

It is recalled that when the Selective Service bill was on the floor of the House, Representative Teague offered the combat pay bill as an amendment. At that time Mr. Vinson objected on the point that it was not germane to the bill, but gave assurances that his committee would take up combat pay.

The text of the letter sent to members of the House by Representatives Teague and Potter follows:

"My dear Colleague:
"The undersigned have placed on the Speaker's desk a petition to require the Committee on Armed Services to discharge H.R. 1753, a bill to provide additional pay for those members of our Armed Forces who actually engage in combat. This bill was introduced by the Chairman of the Armed Services Committee and sponsored by the Department of Defense.

"We believe this action and legislation merits your earnest consideration and support. Since the Korean conflict began, there have been at least eight different attempts to put a combat pay bill before the House. On 12 April 1951, when the House was considering UMT, the Chairman of the Armed Services Committee stated on the floor that his Committee would try to consider this important legislation in a short time. To our knowledge, the matter has not been scheduled for consideration yet, and we feel that it is imperative that some action be taken as soon as possible.

"A combat pay bill would tend to relieve one of the great inequities being done in our military service today. Members of the Armed Forces who are assigned to flying, submarine, paratroop, glider, demolition, and diving duty receive hazardous duty pay varying from $210 to $30 per month. Yet, few will deny that it is the ground combat troops of the Army and Marine Corps who take the brunt of our casualties and who live and die under conditions that no other person in the service is forced to endure. For example, in Korea, as of 22 June 1951, we had 76,749 combat casualties of which 75,227 were in the Army and Marine Corps. On the other hand, statistics show that the average monthly pay of these men who represent the preponderance of casualties is substantially below that of other branches.

"How about recognition in the form of awards and decorations? Based on the ratio of men killed to the number of decorations awarded in World War II, the Army combat divisions awarded 2.5 decorations per man killed and the Marine Corps, 2.7 for each combat death while the rest of the services ranged higher on up to 40.9 awards per man killed.

"We are not trying to detract from the men in the other branches or services of the Armed Forces or from those who are not subjected to combat duty. However, we do feel that this great injustice to the ground combat troops should be rectified by according him some special recognition in the form of pay if hazardous duty is to be considered as an element in compensation. Of course, we realize that no amount of money could compensate these men who are forced, day after day, to endure enemy fire, mud, extremes in heat and cold, K rations and who seldom have an opportunity to sleep in a bed, take a bath, eat a warm meal, and enjoy even the primitive comforts of life.

"Many of the ground troops in Korea today are World War II veterans who are experiencing combat for the second time. It is difficult, indeed, for most to understand why they received $10 extra pay per month as the holder of the Combat Infantryman's Badge during World War II, but have been denied this pittance in the Korean conflict. These ground troops often feel, and justly so, that they are the forgotten men in war. Combat pay would be a token gesture of appreciation and recognition on the part of the Nation for which they are fighting and dying under the worst possible conditions of anyone in war. We are certain that every member of the House Armed Services Committee will verify that the one group of our military service which has been most reticent to request special consideration is our ground combat soldier."

Heads Eucom Civil Affairs

Col. Karl E. Henion, former Deputy Post Commander of Wurzburg Military Post, has been appointed Director of Civil Affairs for the European Command. Colonel Henion succeeds Col. B. G. Ferris, who recently left for the United States and retirement after 36 years of active service.

Correspondence Courses

In order to improve the training of enlisted personnel, the Bureau of Naval Personnel is developing a series of correspondence courses.

Based on Navy Training Courses as texts, the correspondence courses will benefit enlisted personnel in preparing for advancement in rating, if they are used as directed, the Navy said.

Formerly the Enlisted Correspondence Course program was available only to Naval Reservists on inactive duty. Now, all Navy personnel, Regular or Reserve, whether on active or inactive duty, are eligible for enrollment in these courses.

The Navy said that a number of correspondence courses are now available from the Naval Correspondence Course Center, Building RF, U. S. Naval Base, Brooklyn 1, N. Y., and that additional courses will be added.

Keep up with your friends by reading the Army Navy Air Force Journal each week.

Hitting modern targets poses ever-new problems

Increasing emphasis on speed and mobility in modern warfare intensifies the problem of destroying the target. It takes it out of the reach of the manual ability and into the realm of electronics. Working closely with our Armed Forces since 1918 in pioneering and developing equipment to meet these problems, Arma is in the forefront in supplying such precision instruments for our nation's defense.

To Command Amphib Base

Capt. Louis D. Sharp, jr., USN, commander of the Pacific Fleet Amphibious Force's Far East administrative command at Yokosuka, Japan, is returning to San Diego, Calif., to assume command of the Naval Amphibious Base at Coronado, Calif.

Captain Sharp is being relieved of his Far East post by Capt. Theodore J. Shultz, USN. At Coronado Captain Sharp succeeds Capt. C. F. Macklin, jr., USN, as the Base Commanding Officer.

The Far East amphibious administrative command was set up by Captain Sharp shortly after the Marines were landed in Korea. The command is primarily charged with handling logistic and personnel requirements for the amphibious force in the Far East.

Release Navy Reservists

The Navy this week set up procedures to be followed in releasing both officer and enlisted Reservists recalled to duty since the start of the Korean war.

Naval Reserve officers who volunteered for active service in July 1950, in response to requests from the Bureau of Personnel, and who signed an agreement to remain on active duty for a period of at least six months "may request immediate release from active duty upon completion of 12 months active service," the Navy said.

Such officers who were members of the Organized Reserve or members of the Volunteer Reserve in a drill pay status "will not become eligible until completion of 24 months," the announcement stated. Requests for release should be forwarded to the Chief of Naval Personnel via commanding officers.

In a separate directive, instructions were promulgated for discharge or release of Regular Navy enlisted personnel and of Naval Reserve enlisted personnel on active duty in the Regular Establishment. Details are contained in Alnav 62.

USMC General Boards

A Marine Corps selection board, under General LeRoy P. Hunt, USMC-Ret., met on 9 July to consider officers for advancement to the rank of major general and on 19 July another board, under Maj. Gen. Alfred H. Noble, will be convened to recommend colonels for the rank of brigadier general.

Thirteen colonels will be selected to be brigadier generals and six will be advanced to major general. One of the new brigadier generals will be named for supply duty only.

Eligible candidates for advancement to major general are Brigadier Generals Thomas J. Cushman, William L. McKittrick, L. H. M. Sanderson, Ivan W. Miller, William O. Brice, Vernon E. Megee, John T. Selden, Harry B. Liversedge, Walter W. Wensinger, William J. Whaling, William S. Fellers and Edwin A. Pollock.

The eligible zone of Marine Corps colonels for selection as brigadier generals begins with Col. William W. Davies and ends with Col. Clyde T. Mattison.

Serving on General Hunt's board to select major generals are Lieutenant Generals Lemuel C. Shepherd and G. B. Erskine, Major Generals Field Harris, William J. Wallace, Oliver P. Smith, Rear Adm. Maurice E. Curtis, USN, Maj. Gen. Robert H. Pepper, and Rear Adm. Joseph F. Bolger, USN.

General Noble's board members are Major Generals Field Harris, William J. Wallace, William T. Clement, John T. Walker, Henry D. Linscott, and Brigadier Generals Edwin A. Pollock, Clayton C. Jerome, John C. McQueen. Alternate members are Maj. Gen. William P. T. Hill and Brig. Gen. Raymond P. Coffman.

Pilot Bags "Night Flier"

The first Marine pilot to claim a nighttime "kill" of an enemy aircraft in Korea is Capt. Edwin B. Long of Costa Mesa, Calif., Marine Corps Headquarters announced.

Captain Long, 29, said he shot down an antiquated black-painted bi-plane over friendly territory northwest of Seoul shortly after 1 a. m. 1 July, Korean time. The Communists have had very limited air operations, especially at night.

Lt. Pick Decorated

Announcement has been made of the award of the Silver Star Medal for gallantry in action to 1st Lt. Lewis A. Pick, jr., son of Major General Pick, Army Chief of Engineers.

A 1950 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, Lieutenant Pick was cited for outstanding heroism while leading a patrol of Company "K" of the 7th Infantry Regiment of the 3d Infantry Division near Chom-Chon, Korea.

The citation reveals how, despite intense enemy fire, he was able to reach a forward position to direct artillery against a strong Communist emplacement. Later, he led the patrol against a superior enemy force in a successful attack.

Present Corps Colors

General J. Lawton Collins, Chief of Staff of the Army and World War II Commander of the VII Corps, presented the colors of the Corps to its present commanding general, Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burrese, on Friday 13 July, at 3 p.m. in the Pentagon.

In the ceremony in General Collins' office, the colors were passed from a color guard of the Military District of Washington, through General Collins and General Burrese, to a color guard from VII Corps. General Collins and Burrese spoke briefly.

WE'RE LIFTING THE BUSHEL BASKET—AND LETTING OUT OUR LIGHT!

Probably you didn't know it because we haven't told you. BUT—for the past five years we've been building car and truck radios for General Motors. In 1950 alone we built nearly 2,000,000 radios for practically all types of vehicles. Our production tops that of any other car radio manufacturer.

Since we stopped making radio and electronic equipment for the armed forces during World War II, we've concentrated on making our facilities the largest and our products the finest in the industry. Unlike most others, we're not just an assembly plant. We make practically all the parts that go into our products. Our design and research engineers are tops in their field. Our laboratory and production equipment is the finest that can be obtained.

With our vast experience, our facilities, engineering know-how, our productive manpower bigger and better than ever before, we believe we can be of service to our country. We are ready to go to work immediately for national defense and count it a privilege to volunteer for service.

Activate Missile Center

The Air Force Missile Test Center, with headquarters at Patrick AFB, Cocoa, Fla., was activated 30 June replacing the Long Range Proving Ground Division.

The redesignation resulted from a plan of the USAF Air Research and Development Command, Baltimore, Md., to name its various facilities as "test centers." The recently-formed ARDC is responsible for all research and development for the U. S. Air Force.

The Missile Test Center will be responsible for the flight-testing of long-range guided missiles from Cape Canaveral, Fla., and for the testing of short-range missiles at Holloman AFB, Alamogordo, N. M. Maj. Gen. William L. Richardson, USAF, who organized the Air Force's guided missile program in 1945, will command the AFMTC.

The development, operation, and maintenance of the missile range extending from Canaveral to Puerto Rico will be performed by the AFMTC Florida Flight Test Division with Col. Harold W. Norton, USAF, as commanding officer.

Operations at Holloman AFB will continue as before under Col. William H. Baynes, USAF, commanding the AFMTC New Mexico Flight Test Division. Holloman was formerly assigned to the Air Materiel Command.

The Air Force Missile Test Center will include Patrick and Holloman Air Force Bases, and over 100,000 square miles of down-range which will be instrumented for flight performance data recording purposes at eight sub-bases.

Headquarters Squadron

The Air Force, in General Orders No. 36, 28 June, has redesignated Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron, USAF, as Headquarters NSAF. The action will be effective as of 23 July.

Lackland Officer Changes

Three top positions at Lackland AFB, Tex. have been shifted in a reassignment of key staff jobs.

Brig. Gen. Wycliffe E. Steele is acting commanding general of The Gateway base following assignment of Maj. Gen. Charles W. Lawrence to Fitzsimons Hospital, Denver, Colo., for recuperative treatment.

Col. Paul L. Barton, formerly commanding the Officer Candidate Group at Lackland, was named as base deputy commanding general and chief of staff. He succeeds Col. Merlin I. Carter, who will leave Lackland as project officer for a new Air Force indoctrination center to be opened at Shoemaker AFB, Pleasanton, Calif.

New commanding officer of the Officer Candidate Group and assistant commandant of the USAF Officer Candidate School will be Lt. Col. Hugh D. Young who has been director of training at the school.

Col. Howard C. Martin, formerly chief of professional services of the 3700th Medical Group, will be acting base surgeon and commanding officer of Lackland hospital. He will succeed Col. Robert E. Lee, who will leave Lackland for assignment at Keesler AFB, Biloxi, Miss.

Age in Grade Ruling

The Air Force has instructed its major commands regarding criteria for entry into active military service of individual USAFR and ANGUS officers below the grade of brigadier general.

Rated officers ordered to active duty on flying status: Lieutenants, 36; Captain, 41; Major, 44; Lieutenant Colonel, 47; and Colonel, 49.

Non-rated officers and rated officers ordered to active duty on non-flying status: Lieutenants, 36; Captain, 42; Major, 48; Lieutenant Colonel, 53; and Colonel, 55.

Waivers are permissible but only when the best interests of the Air Force "can be fully justified."

All Weather Fighter Training

Rated and non-rated lieutenants, other than pilots, who have not passed their 30th birthday, are being encouraged to apply for the 22-week Radar Observer All Weather Fighter training course.

Applications should be submitted on AF Form 131 in duplicate with copies of physical examinations attached through channels to the Director of Military Personnel, Headquarters, USAF, Attention: AFPMP-1-E.

Heads FEAF Unit

Col. Francis S. Gabreski, famed World War II ace, has succeeded Col. John C. Meyer as commanding officer of the 4th Interceptor Group in Korea.

Before his departure for the Far East, Colonel Gabreski, who is credited with downing 28 German aircraft in World War II, was in command of the 56th Fighter-Interceptor Group, Selfridge AFB, Mich.

Duty Limit at Hdqs.

The Air Force has directed that the normal tour of duty at USAF Headquarters is not to exceed three years, although one year extensions may be obtained.

This means that no officer may be assigned to USAF Headquarters for longer than four years, except with personal approval of the Chief of Staff.

According to Air Force officials, the new order will result in the transfer of approximately 100 officers.

Tow Target Units Formed

Activation on 9 July of the Fourth Tow Target Squadron at George AFB, Victorville, Calif., completes Tactical Air Command's coverage of all anti-aircraft artillery units for practice firing in the United States, according to Lt. Gen. John K. Cannon, USAF, Commanding General of the Tactical Air Command with Headquarters at Langley AFB, Va.

General Cannon has appointed Lt. Col. Robert L. Kelley as Commander of the Fourth Tow Target Squadron. The squadron is composed of three former Air National Guard Flights from Sacramento, Calif.; Little Rock, Ark., and Salt Lake City, Utah. Tactical Air Command's 41st Tow Target Flight from Larsen AFB, Wash., completes the squadron.

Because of their specialized mission, tow target units are much larger organizations than the usual Air Force squadron. They carry on functions usually assigned to an Air Force Group. Flying B-29 Superfortresses, B-45 four engine jet bombers, B-26 light bombers, and F-80 jet fighters, the aircrews tow a twenty-foot cloth sleeve trailing behind their aircraft from low altitudes to as high as 40,000 feet over radar controlled anti-aircraft batteries firing at them from the ground.

Equipped with the latest devices, some of the aircraft provide electronic counter measures against the anti-aircraft radar tracking equipment to confuse their aim. This increases the hazards for the aircrews whose target sleeves are being fired on by 90 and 120 millimeter anti-aircraft guns. Precision flying and strict air discipline are mandatory to avoid hits on the tow plane itself.

Tactical Air Command has all four of the tow target squadrons in the U. S. Air Force covering the six Army Areas. The First Tow Target Squadron at Biggs AFB, El Paso, Tex., provides the flying targets for the initial training of all anti-aircraft crews in the Army Field Forces at the Fort Bliss Anti-aircraft School. The First also maintains a school for key Air Force personnel destined for tow target assignments. The Second Tow Target Squadron at New Castle, Del., covers both the First and Second Army Areas from Maine to South Carolina. The Third Tow Target Squadron operates from the Canadian border to Florida from its station at Sewart AFB, Nashville, Tenn.

AF Overseas Tours

The Air Force has issued orders to all 21 and overseas commanders limiting the extension of all overseas tours to three months and then only when one of the following four specifications is met:

1. Departure of the individual would jeopardize his or his dependents' health.
2. The individual is known to be under investigation by an Army or Air Force agency.
3. The individual is awaiting trial or announcement of trial by court martial.
4. The individual is counting his overseas tour from the date he was joined by his dependents under paragraph 11a, AFR 75-26c, 1 August 1950.

New Regulations

Nutrition — AFR 160-95, 18 June, establishes nutritional standards and responsibilities of the Medical Service in this field.

Preventive Medicine — AFR 160-90, 18 June, relates to preventive medicine reports.

Flying Time — AFR 60-7, 20 June, prescribes conditions under which rated, qualified and non-rated personnel will log flying time.

Duty Roster — AFR 31-12, 18 June, pertains to Duty Roster, effective 1 Aug. 1951.

Air Force Housing

ture of the Air Force is new. The Air Force has been in existence a very short period of time. It has not been able, as the other Services have, to build up over a century and a half the installations that it needs. It is for this reason that the operational facilities, although these are not yet adequate as I have said, have run ahead of the facilities for living. For obviously when the Air Force has to move in on a base it builds the thing that it needs first to fly the machines, and the living facilities come later.

"This request for appropriations is part of an attempt of the Air Force to bring up both of these facilities to proper levels—to have adequate facilities both in the United States and in the rest of the world in order to operate, and secondly, provide proper standards of living for those who carry on the operations. We shall of course urge most strongly before the Committee the maintenance of proper standards for operations, but we shall also at the same time ask the Committee to consider most urgently the requests which we have made in order to establish proper living facilities. In my opinion, these living facilities are now inadequate, especially in the case of dependent housing. At a time like the present when personnel have to live for long periods abroad and away from housing centers at home and abroad, I believe the matter of dependent housing is one which warrants expenditure of funds to a greater extent than is contemplated in the proposed request. . . .

"There is one other detailed aspect of the problem I would like to mention, and that is that immediately after Pearl Harbor the decision was taken by Generals Arnold and Somervell to get construction in place hurriedly. The result was that the building of more solid types of housing at the air bases was discontinued and short-lived housing was built. While this decision was correct at the time, we are now paying the penalty for the short life of the construction."

Base Program

"I want to call especial attention to the Strategic Air Command. The base structure of the Strategic Air Command is being built anew. I hope that any proposal for reductions in the requests which affect the Strategic Air Command will be most closely examined."

"The Air Defense Command also is extremely important, and again I think considerable care must be taken to avoid any reduction in the request which would interfere with the proper facilities to enable us to intercept a hostile bombing attack."

"As the Committee knows, our radar structure is pretty well established by previous authorizations and appropriations in Fiscal Years 1950 and 1951. We are requesting in this appropriation only $24,690,000 of new authorization. This $24,690,000 is (1) for expenditures in connection with the extension of radar coverage into Canada; and (2) for certain other constructions for the defense of bases, which I will be glad to explain to the Committee more in detail if requested.

"In addition in the requested authorization are amounts for the building of bases for our interceptor aircraft and for the installations of high speed refueling and alert and readiness facilities in order to be sure that the planes will get off the ground as rapidly as possible if they have to.

"The requested facilities are only enough to take care of the interceptor squadrons called for in the 95 Wing program on the basis of 1 squadron per base. Our Air Defense Command has always been particularly insistent on the importance of this 1 squadron per base deployment, and I hope that there will be no reductions in the current requests which will interfere with this principle or with our having the most effective high speed refueling and alert and readiness facilities at these bases. I wish to lay special emphasis on the 1 squadron per base operation. As the Committee knows, it is only with a deployment of this kind that the proper Fighter Direction Control activities can be properly carried out. Needless to say, I also emphasize quite strongly the importance of the high speed refueling and other alert and readiness facilities.

"The Tactical Air situation presents a special case because this is, in a large measure, tied up with the development of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in respect to the bases which have not been completed.

"I think it important that this authorization be granted to put the Air Force and other United States Representatives in a position to negotiate properly in connection with the Tactical Air Bases for the NATO forces."

"The Air Force is sadly behind in its installations, both in the United States and abroad. The base structure is the weakest of the three pillars of the Air Force. By the three pillars, I mean the machines which we fly, the men who fly them, and the bases from and to which these machines fly. The machines are moving along reasonably well and so is the training of personnel. But the base structure is definitely in a bad third place. The need for improvement is urgent.

"The base structure of the Air Force is inadequate in two major respects. First, it is not adequate to carry on the operations of the Air Force. By this I mean that the strategic air, the air defense and the tactical air functions are not properly supported in the base structure in the form of runways, high-speed refueling, hangars, and the other operational features that have to be there if the Air Force is going to be able to fly.

"But the Air Force is also especially badly behind in its support facilities and in particular in its housing and other living facilities."

Commands Air Transport Wing

Col. John J. Hutchison has assumed command of MATS 1503d Air Transport Wing at Haneda AB, Japan, following the departure of Brig. Gen. Edward H. White, who has been appointed director of the Army-Air Force Exchange System.

In other personnel changes, Col. Joseph E. Barzynski, jr., was named Acting Chief of Staff for the Wing, and Lt. Col. Joseph L. Sullivan was assigned as Commanding Officer, 1503d Air Base Group.

Trans-Atlantic Teamwork

... The twin-jet Canberra, being groomed to bolster our tactical air power, is a working example of British-American cooperation. Originally designed in England as a high-altitude radar bomber, its flight tests proved it to be as effective at low-level operations. Now, a night intruder version of this light jet bomber will be added to our own Air Force, built by Martin under license from English Electric Co., Ltd.

The Korean conflict has re-emphasized the importance of tactical air power in low-level support of ground troops. To this mission, the Canberra brings exceptional maneuverability at high combat speeds, and at low levels and low speeds... ability to whip around like a fighter and turn with the best of modern aircraft... ability to carry a potent, destructive wallop!

"Whether the men of the United Nations are engaged in combat or are standing on a truce line makes no fundamental change in the need for building strength for the defense of freedom throughout the world."—CHARLES E. WILSON, DIRECTOR OF DEFENSE MOBILIZATION.

Who is a Veteran? Congress should act promptly to restore to Service personnel the educational and other benefits now being denied to them under the Veterans Administration's strict interpretation of the G.I. Bill of Rights. Recent orders issued from VA Central Office have resulted in the regional offices revoking the eligibility, and hence withdrawing financial aid, from thousands of service personnel attending schools and colleges throughout the country. Most of these were officers who had served in the War as AUS or Reserve or National Guard officers and subsequently were integrated into the Regular Establishments. The VA has ruled that only those who were physically separated from the active service are eligible for these rights, that the discharge issued to those in a Reserve status for the purpose of accepting a Regular Commission is not a separation of the type to entitle them to benefits under the G.I. Bill of Rights. Thousands of such officers who had been improving themselves under this bill (and hence improving their value to the Service) have been notified that they are not entitled to such rights. Others who subsequently applied have likewise been denied the benefits. The VA interpretation is that unless there was an actual break in service there was no separation under the law. Contrast this with the Comptroller General's decision that officers who were retired and immediately placed on active duty with a change in status but no break in service had been legally separated and thus sacrificed their accumulated leave and the right to payment therefor. It is strange that these official rulings seem to go whichever way denies benefits or privileges to the career personnel.

It is an odd viewpoint that looks on a man who leaves the Service and goes home as a veteran and at the same time denies the designation to one who fought alongside of him in the war but subsequently was found qualified for and elected to accept a commission in the Regular Service.

A further instance where the officer who remained in the Service is discriminated against is in the matter of VA guaranteed home loans. In many instances, officers have been unable to rent quarters near their permanent duty station, but do find that they can purchase a home which would be resalable when they are transferred. However, when they apply for a home loan the VA does not recognize them as veterans within the meaning of the law.

It seems to us that there should be no discrimination in these matters of veterans benefits—that everyone who served honorably in the war should be entitled to whatever rewards Congress and the Nation decide upon. This should be true regardless of whether he served under a reserve commission or enlistment and later transferred to the Regulars or whether he served as a Regular throughout the war and is still so serving. One recalls with distaste the injustice that followed World War I when the bonus was given to all who served except to those who served in the status of a Regular.

Congress should play fair and rule that all who served honorably in the war are veterans.

Policy for Japan

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

It seems to me and hundreds of others in my position that the time has surely come for a dependent travel policy here in Japan. Except for the actual battle area of Korea, Japan is the only place where dependents are not allowed—also where no policy exists on the length of tours. Families can eventually get to Europe; dependent travel, though slow, is open to Alaska, Hawaii, Guam, Okinawa and the Philippines—yet not to Japan.

In my travels around Japan, I have seen as many empty as filled quarters. Many of these quarters are now falling into disrepair because of neglect. Were our families living in them and thus keeping them in condition, the government—freed of paying our State-side dependents their commutation—could save a great deal of money.

Further, there certainly isn't a fear for their security that keeps the dependents from coming over. With over 40,000 dependents still here, could that be a valid reason? Also, would our Supreme Commander have brought his family here, had he any real fear for their safety?

Troops in Korea are all for it. Many of them would gladly rotate to Japan rather than to the States after their tour in Korea if they could bring their families here. And such an arrangement would save the government money. Why pay to send an officer home and another over here to replace him when he could merely move from Korea to Japan?

Is it too much to ask that a policy be announced to let us know for how long we must expect to be separated from our families? Certainly it is not fair to use the same criteria for length of tours for both the personnel who have their families here with them and those who do not.

Restrictive Personnel Policies

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I should like to add my hearty endorsement to recent editorials and letters to the editor on the subjects of dependent travel to Japan, pay inequities and promotion maladjustment.

It is frustrating to be caught by unnecessarily restrictive personnel policies, and untold irremedial damage to service morale has resulted and continues session of history's most destructive weapon made us over-confident and contributed to the decline of our more conventional land, sea, and air forces. We transferred this new power from the military to all-civilian control and offered our prized and costly possession to the world in return for guarantees for a universal and lasting peace. But the Soviet Union held back and would not agree to the safeguards we sought against its use for war. Then came the revelation that Russia had the bomb, years before we had estimated she would. Our development was intensified. Tests at Bikini and Einiwetok have shown progress infinitely more terrifying than the explosion at Alamogordo. In the offing is the even more terrible hydrogen bomb.

Without international controls and with aggressor nations threatening new outbreaks, we must continue exploiting the destructive power of the atom. But in doing so we must not again be caught weak in the non-atomic phases of land, sea, and air warfare. Korea should be a lesson. There must be no weak spots in our system of National Security.

Some of the gentlemen at Washington are giving themselves a great amount of unnecessary anxiety because of what they regard as the unequal distribution of the rewards and honors of the late war.

to result from these policies. If we might look forward to years of relative peace we could take unnecessary impositions now, knowing they would eventually end. But with one or more decades of unsettled conditions facing us it is incumbent on the services to look out for their own to as great an extent as is consistent with national aims.

In the face of inadequate and apparently indifferent personnel policies, it is most encouraging to know we can turn to you to get our views before others. The Army seldom asks its personnel how that personnel is—under conditions which will permit an honest and relaxed answer; it asks its commanders. Recent visiting dignitaries report nothing but high morale in the Far East. Perhaps these people are sincere in their reported beliefs, but they fail to reflect universal conditions in the command. Discussion such as that recently printed in your readers' and editorial columns is the only hope we have to get corrective action to alleviate the inconsistencies and contradictions in the Far East dependent travel problem, promotion, increased pay to offset the materially increased cost of living and the expense of maintaining two living establishments, and all the rest.

Power to you for getting these things into print. We're members of a very tight oligarchy, and have no way of directly voicing the little man's side of the problem. These are views which G-1's and commanders might well consider, for the time may again come when the Army will have to sell itself to its members.

WO's Pay and Promotion

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I have read with great interest, the text of the bill by Rep. Sutton pertaining to Warrant Officers as printed in your publication. While it is an improvement over the present situation there are two points I would like to see clarified in legislation:

1. That for promotion purposes a Warrant Officer should be allowed to count time served as a Commissioned Officer, providing such service was satisfactory.

2. That for pay purposes the pay and allowance of the O-1, O-2, O-3, O-4 brackets should be assigned to the corresponding W-1, W-2, W-3, W-4 brackets.

Frankly, overseas, most of the WOJG's in the Army draw less pay than a M/Sgt with equal years of service.

Warrant Officer.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

ARMISTICE negotiations in Korea between United Nations and Communist representatives were interrupted late this week when the Reds refused to permit a convoy carrying 20 Allied correspondents to enter Kaesong, the scene of the truce talks. The official representatives of the United Nations then declined to continue the discussions until such time as the enemy permitted the newsmen to proceed to Kaesong. General Matthew B. Ridgway, Commander in Chief of the U.N. Forces, sent a message to the Communists protesting the restrictions placed on U.N. representatives, including members of the press, and proposing that the Kaesong area be neutralized. The Communists sent a message to the effect that the press would be excluded from the conference area for the present, but this did not appear to be a direct reply to General Ridgway's communication.

Previously progress toward an armistice had been reported. Negotiations began at Kaesong on Tuesday, 10 July, with a formal exchange of views, and were continued on Wednesday, but suspended on Thursday, due to the disagreement on press representation.

The principal Allied representative at the conference is Vice Admiral C. Turner Joy, USN, Commanding the United Nations Naval Forces in the Far East. Other members of the delegation are Maj. Gen. Henry I. Hodes, USA, Deputy Chief of Staff of the Eighth Army; Maj. Gen. Laurence C. Craigie, USAF, Vice Commander of the Far East Air Force; Rear Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, USN, commander of a cruiser division in Korean waters; and Maj. Gen. Paik Sun Yup, Korean Army, Commanding I Corps, Republic of Korea Army. Communist representatives at Kaesong are Generals Hsieh Fang and Tung Hua, of the Chinese Army, and Gen. Nam Il, Gen. Chang Pyong San, and Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho of the North Korean Red forces.

Arrangements for the formal armistice conference were completed at a preliminary meeting on Sunday, 8 July, by groups from the opposing forces. At this meeting the Allied representatives were Col. Andrew Kinney, USAF, Col. James Murray, USMC, and Lt. Col. Soo Young Lee, Republic of Korea Army. Details for the subsequent meetings of the senior representatives of both sides were satisfactorily arranged and the preliminary conference was described as 100 per cent successful.

At the outset of the main conference Admiral Joy explained that the United Nations representatives were concerned only with military questions pertaining solely to the Korean conflict. He said they would not discuss political or economic matters, nor military problems relating to other areas. This would rule out such matters as the future of Formosa, the demand of Chinese Communists for admission to the United Nations, or the employment of the American Navy for the protection of Formosa against a possible Red attack. It was also made clear that the Allies were not interested in any temporary cease-fire arrangement, but only in a permanent cessation of hostilities, with ironclad guarantees against their resumption.

► WHILE NO OFFICIAL UNITED NATIONS announcement was made of the details of negotiations at the Kaesong conference Peiping and Korean official Red broadcasts reported what were said to have been the demands made by the Communists at the meeting. These included cessation of hostilities on land, sea and air; establishment of a demilitarized zone, 12 miles in depth, six miles on each side of the 38th parallel, across the Korean peninsula; administration of this zone to be that in force as of 25 June 1950, that is, North Korean, north of the parallel, and South Korean for the southern half of the zone; negotiations for exchange of prisoners; and withdrawal of all foreign armies, presumably including the Chinese forces.

Actually these terms do not vary greatly from those suggested last year by the United Nations and rejected by the Communists. It is not without significance that they fail to include most of the political considerations previously insisted upon by the Communists. Principal difficulties are likely to arise over the proposal that the Eighth Army withdraw from its hard-won, commanding positions in North Korea, and also over the insistence of the Allies that there be complete inspection by an armistice commission to insure compliance with terms of the proposed truce. The Allies are unlikely to agree to withdraw their troops from Korea unless they have absolute guarantees that the aggression which they stopped will not be renewed. Actually, the Allied position is that ultimate troop withdrawal is a political question which should be reserved for consideration by a subsequent diplomatic conference.

While it is evident that Russia definitely desires to liquidate the ill-fated Korean adventure of the Communists, rather than to continue to pour additional supplies and equipment into the conflict, it is quite possible that new Red outbreaks may be sponsored elsewhere, perhaps in Southeast Asia or Iran. The Soviet Union is greatly displeased over the progress toward peace between the non-Communist countries and Germany and Japan, with the probability of some degree of rearmament of these former enemies. The oil crisis in Iran continues to grow worse, and Russia may count on profiting from the confusion resulting from the Iranian seizure of British oil properties and the failure of all efforts to reach a compromise solution.

► THE IRANIAN GOVERNMENT not only has rejected the suggestion of the World Court for an interim operation of the oil industry in Persia by a joint Anglo-Iranian commission, but has angrily withdrawn its recognition of the court. President Truman sent a new note to Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh of Iran, suggesting careful consideration of the proposal of the World Court, and offering to send W. Averill Harriman, foreign affairs adviser to the President, to Iran to be of service in mediating the controversy. The aging Iranian premier remarked that the President's note came too late, since the cabinet had already rejected the suggested compromise. However, he agreed to discuss the matter with Mr. Harriman who was scheduled to leave for Iran late this week. Both England and Iran have indicated the probability of an appeal to the Security Council of the United Nations, England to force recognition of the jurisdiction of the World Court, and Iran to complain of British interference in Iranian internal affairs. The United States is advising against such appeals on the ground that they would only aggravate the controversy.

Meanwhile oil production in Iran is rapidly declining. The huge oil refinery at Abadan is now operating at half capacity, and plans are being made to reduce production to about one-sixth of normal. The British are reported to have decided against any immediate withdrawal of 2,000 technicians, because such a move would completely close down the industry and throw some 60,000 Iranians out of work, most of whom would be potential Communist recruits. Nevertheless, unless there is some unforeseen development it appears certain that the industry will have to close in a few weeks.

► PURSUANT TO A CONGRESSIONAL RESOLUTION the President has written to Nikolai M. Shvernik, nominal head of the Russian government, informing him of the desire of the United States for the friendship of all the peoples of the world and for the maintenance of peace. The President expressed confidence that the Soviet authorities would wish to convey the American friendship resolution to the Russian people. He suggested the desirability of a free exchange of ideas and information, with the assurance that if our aims are understood "there will be no war."

The President this week asked Congress to end the state of war with Germany. The effect of this would be to change the status of German nationals from that of alien enemies to that of citizens of a friendly country. It would give the Germans all the rights accorded to citizens of other foreign countries, and make international relations freer and more normal. It will not directly affect the military occupation of Western Germany, nor will it affect existing statutes based on a state of war, since we are still technically at war with Japan.

The action of the President was concerted with similar steps taken by England, France, Australia, New Zealand, Canada, and other countries. It is expected that all non-Communist countries which were involved in the war with Germany will quickly follow suit. The action becomes necessary because of the refusal of Russia to agree to any peace treaty with Germany on terms acceptable to the western powers. It may very well lead to a limited rearmament of Western Germany, in order to participate in the defense of Western Europe against possible Soviet aggression. Such a development would likely meet with vigorous Russian reaction, in the form of violent diplomatic protests.

An early end to the still-existing state of war with Japan is also in prospect. However, in this case there will be a peace treaty, though Russia is not expected to accept it. All non-Communist participants in the war with Japan are in substantial agreement on a draft of a treaty, and tentative arrangements have been made for a meeting in San Francisco from 4 to 8 Sept., at which the signatures of the adhering states will be affixed. President Truman may attend this meeting.

Russia is expected to decline an invitation to attend the San Francisco meeting and neither nationalist China nor the Chinese Communists will be invited, since the powers are not in agreement as to which faction shall be represented, as the United States still recognizes Chiang Kai-shek's nationalist government, while Britain and some other countries regard the Reds as comprising the de facto government.

The signing of the Japanese peace treaty is expected to be followed by a start toward the formation of a Pacific defensive alliance, patterned after the North Atlantic Security Treaty. The United States, Australia and New Zealand have worked out terms of a mutual defense treaty, the agreement for which was officially initiated at the State Department this week by representatives of the three countries. It is hoped that this convention may ultimately be broadened to cover a general alliance for the mutual defense of non-Communist countries bordering on the Pacific against possible Red aggression.

Personnel Report Further Delayed—The Department of Defense's report on the 47 areas of differences concerning promotions and ranks in the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps is so bogged down that it is now anticipated that no analysis or recommendations will be ready to send to Congress before the end of this year. The report was requested by Senator Stennis (D-Miss.) last April when his subcommittee of the Senate Armed Services Committee was considering bills introduced by Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R-Me.) to resolve the rank differences between the Navy on one hand (which has no grade equivalent to the one-star brigadier general) and, on the other hand, the Army, Air Force, and Marine Corps, whose brigadier generals are outranked by all the Navy's flag officers. At that time, Mr. J. Thomas Schneider, chairman of the Department's Personnel Policy Board, told the committee that this difference between the Services was only one of 47 personnel differences that his board has discovered. Senator Stennis asked when he could have a report on those 47 differences and Mr. Schneider said he thought he could have one in about 60 days. However, the 60 days expired some time ago. In the meantime, the word has gone around that the report requires contacting so many different offices, boards, and agencies that it is not likely that a report can be worked up before the end of 1951, if then.

Dependents to Japan—Mr. Bert Andrews, Washington correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune, who has been on a special news trip to the Far East, was so impressed with the unrest aroused among military personnel by the ban against their bringing their families to Japan that he cabled an article this week that was widely printed in the many other newspapers taking the Herald Tribune service. Mr. Andrews' copyright article reported that the arrival in Tokyo, aboard an Air Force bomber, of the wife and daughter of Lt. Gen. Otto P. Weyland, commanding general of the Far East Air Force, caused "something of an uproar" among Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps personnel who would like to bring their families but are forbidden to do so. He also reported that he has asked a number of questions as to why the exception was made for General Weyland. The article pointed out that the only earlier exception was in the case of General Matthew B. Ridgway, whose wife has joined him there, but he pointed out that this was generally accepted as due the commander in chief.

Test Tank Crew Efficiency—Members of the Army Field Forces Board at Ft. Knox, Ky., are analyzing and evaluating data obtained during a recent three-week field test at Ft. Campbell, Ky., set up to determine the relative efficiency of four-man and five-man tank crews. The tests were made by the two platoons from the 141st Tank Battalion under Capt. Richard G. Miller, a company commander.

The project, which may have a far-reaching effect on the future use of armor, was conducted for Army Field Forces Board No. 2, the Armored Center, Fort Knox. Observers from the Board carefully recorded data concerning maintenance capabilities and physical endurance of the respective sized crews.

One platoon furnished four-man tank crews, and the other five-man tank crews. Using the new M-46 General Patton tanks, the different sized crews operated side by side in the field under simulated combat conditions. All of the tanks were operated a minimum of five hours per day. Final results of the test will be determined by Army Field Forces Headquarters at Fort Monroe, Va.

Inspector of Armor—General Mark W. Clark, Chief of Army Field Forces, Ft. Monroe, Va., has announced the appointment of Maj. Gen. John Howell Collier as Inspector of Armor. General Collier has been the commander of the Stuttgart Military Post in Germany. He replaces Brig. Gen. Riley F. Ennis who recently became the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-2 of the Far East Command in Tokyo. Col. Charles V. Bromley, Jr. has been the acting Inspector of Armor.

Chairman Vinson Writes A Letter—Stirred by an editorial published on 2 July in the Washington, D. C. Post which criticized pending Marine Corps legislation, Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee, in a letter to that newspaper, insisted this week that the Marine Corps Commandant should be a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and that the Marine Corps must be kept at adequate strength to serve "as the Nation's ground-air shock troops in the earliest and most demanding hours of war."

Chairman Vinson's communication—unusual in that he rarely makes his views known in this fashion—held that the Department of Defense wants no Marine Corps bill at all, that every matter considered by the JCS "vitally affects the Marine Corps in one way or another," that "the concentration of one strategic concept—Army-Air Force—in the policy-making areas of the defense establishment infinitely outweighs the representation of the maritime concept in those areas," and that two competing ground forces will not be established by expending the Marine Corps.

Congressman Vinson contended that use of Selective Service by the Marine Corps would reduce competition for manpower. He said whether or not the Marine Corps is enlarged it must go to Selective Service and added that "the same thing is likely soon to be true as regards the Air Force and Navy."

In the same issue in which Mr. Vinson's letter is published, 12 July, The Post declares in a second editorial that "what Chairman Vinson . . . proposes with respect to the Marine Corps, in his letter . . . is the virtual creation of a fourth co-equal military service. If quadruplication rather than unification is the objective," says The Post, "that ought to be acknowledged. The Marines ought to be divorced from their amphibious relationship with the Navy, they ought to provide their own supply and medical services, and a separate Secretary of Marines ought to be created. What that would accomplish except to boost defense costs," adds The Post, "we do not know, but it would be the logical extension of the line taken by the champions of Marine independence."

The Post argues that "the Marines are a specialized service—triplibious in character to be sure, but still a relatively small body of trouble-shooters whose speciality lies in being ready." The newspaper maintains that "The Marine Corps Commandant would be valuable as a consultant to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, but it is ridiculous to hold that every matter discussed intimately concerns the Marines." The Post says that "in the interest of a balanced military establishment, very probably the strength of the Marine Corps ought to be increased somewhat."

"That expansion," the editorial concludes, "in the interest of a balanced military establishment, very probably the strength of the Marine Corps ought to be increased somewhat. That expansion would be covered by the provision in the bill passed by the Senate guaranteeing four full-strength divisions and four air wings. The Marine Corps also would be protected by adoption of the formula suggested by Admiral Sherman gearing the minimum Marine strength at 20 per cent that of the Navy. Beyond this, however, the Marines are entitled to no special preserve. If the Marine Corps rooters would just cease their eternal pushing, we dare say Marine morale would take care of itself."

The fact that Chairman Vinson took the effort to write to The Post instead of ignoring the newspaper's opposition to the Marine Corps bill, is an indication of his strong feeling that a forceful Marine Corps bill must be passed. Since Representative Vinson is one of the most influential members of the House and in view of the wide support for the Marine Corps on Capitol Hill, it is conceivable that the House will pass a bill granting substantially more to the Marine Corps than was passed by the Senate. For example, the Senate bill makes the Commandant a "consultant" and not a member of the JCS as is now advocated in the House bill, reported favorably by the Armed Services Committee. Also the Senate bill has no floor on the strength of the Marine Corps. The House bill, as cleared by the Committee, stipulates an authorization of a minimum enlisted strength of 300,000 for the Marine Corps and a maximum of 400,000. No other Service has a minimum authorization.

The possibility is that the House may pass the bill exactly as recommended by the Committee and that subsequently the House conferees, meeting with conferees for the Senate, will insist on Mr. Vinson's position. However, Chairman Vinson has stated that Congress must not invite a veto by the President and it is conceivable that in order to avoid such a development the House conferees might accede to the Senate on some points. On the other hand, Marine Corps backers in both the Senate and House feel they have enough votes to override a veto.

AIA Forms Rocket Committee—The Aircraft Industries Association of America has organized a Rocket Technical Committee which is doing extensive work in developing and extending the uses of rocket power in modern military craft and missiles and for commercial application. Eight member companies of AIA engaged in rocket development work have named top experts to this committee and others are expected to be added in the near future.

Since the problems of rocket propulsion are different from those of jet or other type power plants, the new committee will work directly with the military services on new design requirements, testing procedures, safety problems and the storage and handling of propellants. It is currently working on design and test criteria for propellant tanks.

As a major aid to both industry and the services, it also is working on joint revision of rocket engine procurement and technical specifications.

While rocket power currently has its greatest application in guided missiles, it also powers some of the experimental supersonic planes, such as the Douglas Skyrocket which recently broke all speed and altitude records, and is used for "rocket-assist takeoff" to get heavily loaded planes off short runways. RATO also is used for fast climb and for extra bursts of power in combat. Its development is expected to continue both for main propulsion and augmented thrust units. Most guided missiles get their power from rocket engines, both main and booster units. Developments are going forward with both liquid and solid fuels.

USNA Class Ring Collection—Mrs. David Foote Sellers, widow of former U. S. Naval Academy Superintendent, Admiral David Foote Sellers, has presented the Academy's Museum with the late Admiral's class ring. It will represent the Class of '94 in the Museum's unique collection of class rings and crests. It was under the direction of Admiral Sellers that Capt. Wade DeWeese, USN, Acting Director of the Museum, started the class ring collection for the Academy's ninetieth anniversary in 1935. The collection consists of rings dating back to 1869, when a ring was first adopted as the class symbol. It includes rings that belonged to such officers as Admiral Joseph Strauss, '85; Admiral Walter R. Sexton, '97; Rear Adm. A. T. Church, '05; Comdr. Ralph Keily, '15; and Lt. Robert Dale Reem, USMC, '48, who gave his life in the fighting in Korea.

MATS Atlantic Division—Col. Tarleton H. Watkins, Executive Officer of Kindley AFB, Bermuda, for the past 18 months, left last week for a new assignment at Wiesbaden, Germany with the Atlantic Division European Wing, MATS. The Colonel bears the unofficial distinction of having been one of the first four fighter pilots in the air in World War II, when he and three others took off from Hickam in hastily patched up A-20s, following the 7 Dec. attack, in an unsuccessful attempt to locate the Jap aircraft carrier reported near the island.

Recon Return—When the 81st Reconnaissance Battalion of the First Armored Division crashed into Milan six years ago, German Army Private Gerhard H. Lemke was captured. Last year, ex-Private Lemke immigrated to the United States and settled in Gallup, N. M. Not long ago, Private Lemke was drafted. His assignment: 81st Reconnaissance Battalion, First Armored Division, Fort Hood, Tex.

Navy MSC PhD—Lt. (jg) Leslie Wayne Teller, jr., MSC, USNR, in charge of the Entomology Division, Naval Medical School, National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., recently was awarded his Doctor of Philosophy degree and elected to Phi Kappa Phi at the University of Maryland. He is at present an instructor in Medical Entomology. As part of his duties, Lt. Teller identifies insects sent to the Naval Medical School by naval activities throughout the world.

Army Nurse Corps—Lt. Col. Ruby F. Bryant, who has been Nursing Consultant for Sixth Army Area Headquarters, The Presidio, San Francisco, Cal., is expected in Washington 1 Aug. to join the Nursing Division, Office of the Army Surgeon General. Replacing her on the west coast will be Maj. Cecil Gunn, now on leave preparatory to going on duty at her new assignment in a few weeks. Major Gunn has been in the Personnel Division, Office of the Surgeon General.

New AF Health Educator—Malcolm A. Mason, MPH, has been appointed to the new position of Health Educator in the preventive medicine division of the Air Force Surgeon General's office. He will assist in planning, directing and coordinating all USAF health education activities. Prior to his present appointment, Mr. Mason was director of health education for the agriculture extension service at Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind.

Air Force Nurse Corps—Six Air Force nurses were among those attending the two weeks' Workshop on Hospital Nursing Service conducted recently at Catholic University, Washington, D. C. by members of the school's faculty. The group included Lt. Col. Bertha Elsner, Headquarters Air Training Command, Belleville, Ill.; Maj. Elizabeth Darden, Offutt AFB, Nebr.; Maj. Evelyn Kelly, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio; Maj. S. Margaret Kowaleski, Sheppard AFB, Tex.; Maj. Ruth Tregoe, Langley AFB, Va.; and Capt. Florence Fintak, Gunter Branch, School of Aviation Medicine, Montgomery, Ala.

Army JAGC—Under provisions of the Army Organization Act of 1950, the Army this week detailed the following three brigadier generals of the Judge Advocate's General Corps as follows: Brig. Gen. Robert W. Brown, Assistant JAG for Procurement; Brig. Gen. James L. Harbaugh, jr., Assistant JAG for Military Justice; and Brig. Gen. Claude B. Mickelwait, Assistant JAG for Civil Law.

Field Investigations Launched—The Senate Armed Services and Senate Crime Committees are cooperating in investigating gambling and prostitution near military camps. Investigators have been sent out to make first-hand inquiries. According to Senator Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Preparedness Committee, "slot machine kings" have moved in and set up operations around some camps. It was stated that investigators had been ordered to report on conditions around Camp Rucker, Ala., Ft. Jackson, S. C., Camp Breckinridge, Ky., Camp Atterbury, Ind., Camp Pickett, Va., and Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

Navy Aviation Medicine School A "Command"—The U. S. Naval School of Aviation Medicine, Pensacola, Fla., long an "Officer-in-Charge" activity, became a Command on 6 July. Capt. Leon D. Carson, MC, USN, formerly Officer in Charge of the School, was designated Commanding Officer.

Admiral Abercrombie Retires

Retirement of Rear Adm. Laurence Allen Abercrombie, USN, who since September, 1950, had served, with the rank of Captain, as public relations advisor to the Reserve Forces Policy of the Department of Defense, was announced on 5 July.

Prior to his assignment to the Reserve Forces Policy Board, Admiral Abercrombie served from April, 1949, to September, 1950, as Assistant to then Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson.

Born in Lawrence, Mass. on 11 Oct. 1897, Admiral Abercrombie was educated at Lawrence High School, Phillips Academy, and the U. S. Naval Academy from which he graduated in 1920. He has been awarded three Navy Crosses for his service during World War II—the first for distinguished service as Commanding Officer of the USS Drayton on 24 Dec. 1941; the second for his action as Screen Commander of a Task Unit in the Solomon Islands Area on 17 Feb. 1943; and the third for exploits off the Gilbert Islands on 22 Oct. 1942, which resulted in the sinking of two Japanese warships.

MR. Roswell L. Gilpatrick of New York, newly appointed Assistant Secretary of the Air Force, and Mrs. Gilpatrick have taken a house in Arlington, Va.

They are renewing acquaintances made during the war when he worked closely with the Air Force and Navy officials on production contracts and Mrs. Gilpatrick was busy with the Committee for Economic Development. In New York she was active with China organizations and the recording of text books for blind veterans and students.

Mrs. Gilpatrick is on the board of directors of the National Committee for Recording for the Blind, Inc., and now that the organization has received a grant from the Ford Foundation is setting up committees in cities throughout the country. She hopes to initiate a branch here and has already received offers of assistance from the Library of Congress.

A reception in honor of Major Generals Edward F. Witsell and William E. Bergin was given by the officers of the Adjutant General's Office, Department of the Army, at Ft. McNair on 6 July.

The reception was given in honor of General Witsell's retirement after more than 39 years' service and of his succession by General Bergin. General Witsell, who retired on 30 June, had served as The Adjutant General of the Army since 1 Feb. 1946. General Bergin was formerly Chief of the Personnel Bureau of the Adjutant General's Office.

Among those attending the affair were Assistant Secretary of the Army Karl R. Bendetsen; Assistant Secretary of the Army Earl D. Johnson and Mrs. Johnson; Chief of Staff of the Army, General J. Lawton Collins and Mrs. Collins; General Wade H. Haislip, Vice Chief of Staff of the Army, and Mrs. Haislip; Lt. Gen. Charles L. Bolte, Deputy Chief of Staff of the Army, and Mrs. Bolte; Lt. Gen. R. S. McLain, Comptroller of the Army, and Mrs. McLain; Lt. General and Mrs. Clarence R. Huebner; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. G. I. Back; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. A. R. Bolling; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. E. M. Brannon; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Robinson E. Duff; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Robert H. Dunlop; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. H. Feldman; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. E. L. Ford; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Harold N. Gilbert; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Frank A. Helleman; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. A. C. McAuliffe; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. P. J. Mueller; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Roy H. Parker; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Floyd L. Parks; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Lewis A. Piek; Maj. Miss Gail Teese, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Harry F. Teese, became the bride of Lt. Lawrence M. Walton, son of Lawrence P. Walton, Silver Spring, Md., in a ceremony performed 30 June in the Post Chapel Ft. Lee, Va., by Chaplain Oscar C. Taylor.

Mrs. Robert J. Watson, of Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Roy A. Griffin, Indiana, Pa., and Mrs. Barbara Riley, Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind. Best man was Lt. James L. Teese, Ft. Jackson, S. C., brother of the bride. Lieutenant and Mrs. Walton will make their home in Ogden, Utah at the Utah General Depot, where he is stationed.

A Ft. Sill, Okla. unit has streamlined an old tradition of the field artillery. For the first time at Sill, a young artillery officer and his bride toured the post on a radar trailer instead of the traditional caisson.

The couple taking the precedent-setting jaunt were 2d Lt. and Mrs. John D. McCarthy.

The lieutenant is battery commander of A battery, 529th Field Artillery Observation battalion. When the young couple came to Sill after their marriage in the East, Lt. Col. Raymond W. Millican, commanding officer of the battalion, decided it was time to get "on the beam" with this streamlined army. Hence the radar trailer was pressed into use.

A "Just Married" sign was hung on the trailer and a bench, safety strap, guidons and streamers were added. The young couple were boosted aboard and accompanied around the post by battalion officers and their families. Col. Richard W. Mayo, commanding officer of the 17th Field Artillery group, to which the 529th belongs, was in the group.

Sill personnel greeted the procession with glee as it toured the post. The "radar ride" wound up with a gala party in honor of the newlyweds.

Miss Ruth Stanton Gildart, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Chas. R. Gildart, USA-Ret., was married 26 June at Church of St. Andrew, Richmond, S. I., N. Y., to Mr. George Draper Lewis, III.

Colonel Gildart, formerly Chief of Staff, Army Forces Antilles, Ft. Brooke, P. R., gave his daughter in marriage. The bride is a teacher at the Army and Navy Dependents School, Naval Station, San Juan, P. R.

Best man was Mr. John P. Van Cott of Queens Village, L. I., N. Y. Lt. Chas. R. Gildart, Jr., FA, USA, Ft. Campbell, Ky., brother of the bride, was an usher.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis are making their home on Wilson Street, Santurce, P. R.

The recent engagement of Miss Barbara Ford and 1st Lt. Leif Oxaal has been announced by Miss Ford's parents, Maj. and Mrs. Edgar Ford.

Lieutenant Oxaal is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arne Oxaal of Kenton, Ohio.

Miss Ford is attending Kansas State College where she is a member of Chi Omega sorority. Previously, she attended the University of Neuchatel, Mon Ruzy, Sam Simmens and Ecole Benedict in Neuchatel, Switzerland.

Lieutenant Oxaal attended University of California at Los Angeles, the University of Oslo in Norway, and Ohio State University. He was a member of the Royal Norwegian Air Force during World War II. He is now serving with a psychological warfare unit at Ft. Riley.

The wedding will take place 3 Aug. at Ft. Riley.

■ KELLY AFB, TEX. Lending a nautical flavor to the traditional Air Force review ceremonies, the stirring notes of "Anchors Aweigh" rang out recently across the Kelly Parade Ground. The occasion was the retirement of Capt. Daniel W. Tomlinson, USNR, who closed 20 years of active military service. In what is presumed to be the first time a ranking naval officer has been honored by the Air Force upon the occasion of his retirement, Captain Tomlinson took the review which symbolized the unification of the Armed Forces in typical Navy style.

Col. George W. Peterson has replaced Captain Tomlinson as deputy commander of Continental Division.

■ FT. BRAGG, N. C. Lt. Col. Walter A. Fleckenstein, recently assigned to the 82d Airborne Division, has replaced Maj. Richard B. Gutshall as Chief of the Military Government Section. Major Gutshall has been reassigned to the XVIII Airborne Corps. ■ FT. BENNING, GA. Maj. Gen. John H. Church, Infantry Center commander, recently presented the Distinguished Service Cross to Capt. John J. Powers and First Lt. Stephen E. Gray of Company D, Infantry School Detachment. Lt. Col. James H. Lynch, Staff Department, The Infantry School, received the Legion of Merit.

Proposed construction of 200 additional Wherry Housing units at Ft. Benning is announced. Plans call for 150 bungalow-type dwellings to be located on the south side of Custer Road opposite Battle Park. Fifty more will be built beyond and adjacent to Custer Terrace.

Col. Thomas H. Rees, assistant chief of staff, G-2, the Infantry Center, was retired from the service recently after serving 41 years.

■ MARCH AFB, CALIF. This base is in the process of receiving more than $25 million worth of construction and improvements. With the $5 million Wherry Project, the appropriation of more than $15 million for construction at MAFB requested by Defense Secretary George C. Marshall and a $6 million plus runway project tentatively awarded to the Peter Kiewit Construction Company of Arcadia, MAFB seems to be heading for an air destiny of major proportions.

■ FORBES AFB, KANS. Airmen and officers expended a total of almost 12,000 man-hours in helping the City of Topeka battle flood waters. Heavy rains, which fell almost daily throughout June, sent swollen rivers and streams over their banks in the final week of the month. Topeka's undermanned National Guard units battled the surging waters but continuing downpours quickly created an emergency situation which caused Mayor Kenneth E. Wilke to call upon Col. Gerald G. Robinson, Forbes commander, for aid.

Forbes Air Police were placed at the disposal of Topeka Police Chief Roy D. Kerr, with Maj. Jack R. Miller, Provost Marshal, directing operations. "It is indeed gratifying," Chief Kerr wrote to Colonel Robinson, "to know that the assistance of the Air Police and other of your base command can be relied upon in emergency. I particularly

■ GRIFFISS AFB, N. Y. The entire 1,500-volume library of the late Lt. Col. Townsend E. Griffiss has been presented to the Officers' Club according to an announcement by Col. Paul E. Burrows, Base Commander. In making the announcement, Colonel Burrows said, "Mrs. Elizabeth C. Alexander, sister of Colonel Griffiss after whom the Base was named, made the presentation with the understanding that the entire library would be kept permanently on the Base."

The Rome, N. Y., air base was officially named Griffiss AFB on 3 Feb. 1948 in honor of Colonel Griffiss, who was killed in action in a plane crash while returning to England from a special mission to Russia. At the time of his death Colonel Griffiss was aide to Maj. Gen. James E. Chaney and Secretary of the Special Army Observer Group in London, England.

■ ERLANGEN, GERMANY. A formal buffet dinner was held in the home of Brig. Gen. Eric S. Molitor, USA, OG, 1st Infantry Division Artillery, in honor of Maj. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, USA, and his wife, after General Dahlquist, 1st Infantry Division Commander dedicated "Artillery Field," the home of the Division Artillery Calissons baseball team. Guests at the dinner included, Col. and Mrs. Ralph R. Mace, 1st Inf. Div. Artillery, Executive Officer, Col. J. F. R. Seitz, 26th Inf. Regt. Commander, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Harry W. Elkins, Div. Artillery S-3, Maj. and Mrs. Jonathan M. Grant, Div. Artillery S-1, Maj. and Mrs. Roscoe T. Minson, Div. Artillery S-4, and Capt. and Mrs. Walter R. Benson, Div. Artillery S-2.

■ NORFOLK, VA. In one of the largest all-Marine ceremonies held at the Norfolk Naval Base, 1,200 fighting men from the 2d Marine Division at Camp Lejeune, N. C., last week paid tribute to retiring Lt. Gen. LeRoy P. Hunt, Commanding General, Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic. Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine officially replaced General Hunt in a later ceremony held at the Naval Base South Annex. He also received his third star in the ceremony.

Mrs. Hunt pinned the four star insignia of a full general on her husband, the rank to which he was appointed upon his retirement. Cpl. Martha V. Ludwig of the Women Marines Detachment at Norfolk placed a four star flag on the general's jeep. The general entered the jeep, and with the Battalion Commander, Lt. Col. James D. McBrayer, reviewed the troops.

■ FITZSIMONS AFB, COLO. Mrs. Harry D. Offutt, wife of the Commanding General at Fitzsimons Army Hospital, was guest of honor at the Ladies Luncheon Club on 3 July. A sherry party preceded the luncheon at which official hostesses were Mrs. D. B. Peterson, Mrs. Donald Cook, Mrs. William Currence, Mrs. T. F. Puckett and Mrs. N. J. Cole. The parting gift from the members of the club was presented by Mrs. Harold S. McBurney, president of the group. Committees other than the hostesses were headed by Mrs. Albert A. Blederman and Mrs. Carl W. Tempel, and included Mrs. Richard Cameron, Mrs. John Plum, Mrs. Milton Hollander, Mrs. Alfred Arvin and Mrs. Dewey George.

■ ANNAPOLIS, MD. Capt. R. F. Freilisen, USN-Ret., and Mrs. Freilisen entertained at cocktails on 28 June in their home at Wardour, in honor of Col. Guy Douglas Thompson, USA, and Mrs. Thompson of Fort Hamilton, N. Y.

Rear Adm. and Mrs. Wallace Miller and their daughter Susie, have returned to Atlanta after visiting Mrs. Miller's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Jackson of Wardour.

Mrs. John C. Hill, wife of Comdr. Hill, USN, and their three children, are visiting Comdr. Hill's parents, Vice Adm. and Mrs. Harry M. Hill at the Superintendent's Quarters, Naval Academy.

Mrs. William G. Brendle, wife of Lt. Brendle, USN, and their small son, have arrived from Norfolk, and are staying with Mrs. Brendle's parents, Dr. and Mrs. George C. Basil of Bay Ridge. Lt. Brendle will join his family shortly, and expects to be stationed at the Naval Academy.

■ BRUNSWICK, ME. At a recent meeting of the Officers' Wives' Club of the 654th A.C. & W. Squadron held at the Bath Country Club an election of officers was held. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. V. B. Lindsey, wife of the commanding officer and honorary president, and Mrs. G. H. Galloway, president, pro-tem. Other outgoing officers were Mrs. D. M. Sweet and Mrs. L. J. McKay.

Officers elected and installed were: Mrs. L. M. Lewis, president; Mrs. W. F. Brothens, vice-president; Mrs. D. M. Sweet, treasurer; Mrs. J. L. Newsom, secretary; and Mrs. A. L. Price, executive-member-at-large.

Committee chairmen were selected as follows: Mrs. D. M. Jones, entertainment; Mrs. L. J. McKay, clothes for Korea Drive; and Mrs. O. D. Hayes, Sunshine Committee. The vice-president automatically became head of the Spotters' Committee. Mrs. R. A. Mickler will head the publicity committee.

IND Reserve Coordinator Retires

Capt. William S. G. Davis, USN, since 1946 Naval Reserve Coordinator for the First Naval District, has retired after 31 years of naval service.

Responsible for the administration of all Naval Reserve activities in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island and Massachusetts, Captain Davis supervised the formation of nearly 175 organized and volunteer naval reserve units. Although the area which he served is smaller geographically and not so heavily populated as many other Districts, it contributed proportionately the greatest number of officers and men to the Reserve program.

Keep up with your friends by reading the Army Navy Air Force Journal each week.

Obituaries

Mrs. Joseph H. Himes

Mrs. Joseph H. Himes, wife of the president of the Army and Navy Journal, Inc., died 5 July at City Hospital, Frederick, Md.

She is survived by Mr. Himes, their son, Canfield Himes, and two daughters, Miss Marilyn Himes and Mrs. John B. Wogan, wife of Lt. John B. Wogan, jr., USAF, now serving in Korea. Lieutenant Wogan, a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, is the son of Maj. Gen. John B. Wogan, USA-Ret.

Mr. and Mrs. Himes came to Washington in 1921 when he was elected to the House of Representatives from Ohio. After his service in Congress they remained in Washington, later making their home at Prospect Hall near Frederick, Md.

Mrs. Himes was active in welfare work, particularly with reference to children and mothers. She was born in California, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Canfield. Mr. Canfield, a pioneer oil prospector in California, was well known for his philanthropies.

Mrs. Himes was affiliated with the Community Chest from its organization in 1928. She was also at one time president of the Children's Country Home Board and served on the board of Columbia Hospital. During World War II she organized the American Women's Voluntary Services in Frederick.

Col. Charles A. Mason, USA-Ret.

Col. Charles A. Mason, USA-Ret., died 7 July at the Ft. Ord, Calif., Station Hospital where he has been admitted following a heart attack in the latter part of May.

Funeral services were held on 10 July in the Episcopal Church of St. Mary, Pacific Grove, Calif., and interment was in Colonel Mason's family plot at Springfield, Ohio.

Prior to his retirement in 1944, Colonel Mason had commanded Ft. Ord. He and Mrs. Mason made their home close by Route 1, Box 1086, Monterey, Calif.

Aside from a distinguished military career, Colonel Mason was well-known throughout the Monterey Peninsula area for his civic and religious activities following his retirement.

Born 2 Nov. 1881 at Ft. Sanders in the Wyoming Territory, the son of General Edwin C. and Frances Kingsbury Mason, Colonel Mason spent much of his youth at Ft. Snelling, Minn., where his father was in command of the Third Infantry Regiment. Colonel Mason was commissioned in 1902 and rose to the rank of colonel during World War I.

In addition to his widow, daughter of Brig. Gen. Fred Smith, Colonel Mason is survived by a sister, Mrs. James T. Moore of Washington, D. C., and a nephew, Col. Kenneth Mason Moore, USA.

Col. Raymond E. Shum, USA-Ret.

Funeral services for Col. Raymond E. Shum, USA-Ret., who died at his home, Rocky Acre, Ogunquit, Me., on 21 June, were held 24 June at the Baptist Church, Ogunquit, with burial in the family plot at South Berwick, Me.

Colonel Shum was born in Charleston, Mass., on 4 Apr. 1893 and was graduated from Berwick Academy, Me., and from the University of New Hampshire, Class of 1917.

He was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1917 and was made a Regular officer after World War I.

During World War II, Colonel Shum went to the British West Indies in connection with defense activities and in 1943 became chief of staff of the Trinidad Sector and Base Command.

Colonel Shum's last duty before his retirement was as deputy chief of staff at Ft. Lewis, Wash., where his active service was ended because of physical disability.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Nita Hill Shum; a sister, Mrs. George D. Weare; and a brother, Alden F. Shum, all of Ogunquit, Me.

Col. Wilbur S. Elliott, USA

Graveside services will be held in Arlington National Cemetery, 19 July at 10 a. m. for Col. Wilbur S. Elliott, 57, USA, former Chief, Water Division, Army Office Chief of Transportation. Colonel Elliott died 27 Dec. 1950 in Tripler Army Hospital at Ft. Shafter, Hawaii.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Margaret P. Elliott, formerly of 3130 Wisconsin Ave., N.W., and now residing in Hawaii; a daughter, Mrs. Patricia E. Lord, 3804 Stratford Ave., Dallas, Tex., and a granddaughter, Page E. Lord.

Colonel Elliott was serving as Transportation Officer, Headquarters, U. S. Army, Pacific, Ft. Shafter, Hawaii, at the time of his death. He won the Legion of Merit for planning and successfully completing the combat loading of a task force of 34,000 officers and men for the North African invasion of November 1942. An Oak Leaf Cluster was awarded for planning a transportation program in Europe in 1945 while serving with SHAEF.

Colonel Elliott was born in California, 19 Aug. 1893. He attended the U. S. Military Academy briefly and was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1917. He was a graduate of the Army Industrial College and of the Quartermaster School. During World War I, he served with the American Expeditionary Force from July 1922 to Sept. 1923. Most of his more than 33 years of active service were spent in the Quartermaster and Transportation Corps.

During World War II, he was Superintendent of the Army Transportation Service at the Hampton Roads, Va., Port of Embarkation, leaving in Feb. 1944 to take over duties as Deputy Chief of the Movements and Training Branch of SHAEF. He returned to the United States in Aug. 1945 and became Executive Officer of the Water Division, Office Chief of Transportation. Colonel Elliott headed that Division from December 1945 until January 1949 when he again left the United States to begin duties as Transportation Officer, U. S. Army, Pacific.

Capt. Paul Titus, MC, USNR-Ret.

Capt. Paul Titus, MC, USNR-Ret., honorary reserve consultant to the Surgeon General of the Navy, died suddenly on 29 June at Pittsburgh, Pa.

He was laid to rest on 2 July at Pittsburgh, Pa. At the time of his death he was a commanding figure in the field of obstetrics and gynecology, having been actively engaged in this specialty for more than 43 years. He was 66 years old.

In 1944, he volunteered for active duty in the Navy and was appointed a lieutenant commander in the Medical Corps Reserve. Reporting for duty immediately thereafter, he was assigned to the Personnel Division of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, Navy Department, Washington, D. C. During this period of active duty he made many field trips in connection with the Medical Reserve Officer Procurement Program; was responsible for classifying approximately 14,000 medical officers in accordance with their training and professional skills and established the professional standards for intern and residency training in Naval Hospitals. With the ending of the war and the completion of his mission, Dr. Titus was released to inactive duty in the latter part of 1945. For his valuable contribution to the Naval Service in World War II he was awarded a Letter of Commendation by Secretary of the Navy Forrestal. He was transferred to the Honorary Retired List of the Naval Reserve in February 1951, having passed the statutory retirement age of sixty-four.

Capt. Omar J. Brown, MC, USN

Capt. Omar Jesse Brown, MC, USN, died on 7 July in Georgetown Hospital, Washington, D. C. He was laid to rest with full military honors in Arlington National Cemetery on 10 July. At the time of his death, Captain Brown was on active duty and was one of the foremost authorities on tropical medicine in the Medical Department of the Navy.

Captain Brown, the staff medical officer of the Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic, suffered a fractured back in an accidental fall down a flight of steps in his home at Norfolk, Virginia on 10 June. He was brought to Washington, D. C. for treatment on 21 June, and died of complications resulting from the fall.

Born in Bombay, N. C. on 30 July 1902, he received his degree of Doctor of Medicine from George Washington University, School of Medicine in 1929. In the same year he was commissioned a Lieutenant (J. G.) in the Medical Corps of the Navy and served his internship at the Naval Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Following various assignments, ashore and afloat, he was responsible for reducing the incidence of malaria at Marine Corps installations in North Carolina during 1941-43. For his outstanding performance of duty during this period he received a Commendation from the Secretary of the Navy. From 1943-45 he was in charge of the Navy's epidemic disease control board at the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery. Captain Brown, during World War II, was also engaged in similar work in the Pacific.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Audrey A. Brown, two daughters, Miss Joanne Harlow Brown and Miss Beverley Andrea Brown, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon L. Brown of 1327 Irving St., N.W., Washington, D. C.

The War in Korea

Japan-based B-29 Superforts at Sunan and Sunchon in Western Korea and at Chori in Eastern Korea. Railway bridges north of Pyongyang and near Songchon on the trans-peninsular line were damaged by F-80 Shooting Stars. F-84 Thunder Jets attacked enemy flak positions prior to the bomber assault on the Sunchon target.

B-29 medium bombers and B-26 light bombers joined forces in dropping air-bursting anti-personnel bombs on enemy front-line positions in Central Korea. Other B-26s and land-based Marine aircraft, aided by flare-dropping cargo planes, made night attacks on heavy enemy vehicular traffic.

Travel Claim Backfires

As a result of pressing a claim for reimbursement for transportation of a dependent wife from Cleveland, Ohio, to San Diego, Calif., Capt. Mark W. Billing, USMCR, Service Battalion, Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., has been notified by the Comptroller General that he is indebted to the Government in the amount of $183.47 for overpayment in his own case for transportation from Cleveland, his last duty station, to Los Angeles, from which place he was ordered to active duty.

The cost of transportation of his wife from Cleveland to Detroit had been approved. The sequent claim for travel cost for her from Cleveland to San Diego, which he had later chosen as his home, led to the discovery that Captain Billing had been overpaid.

The basis for the decision (B-102144), and the comments of the Comptroller General are as follows:

"Under the provisions of section 12 of the Pay Readjustment Act of 1942, 56 Stat. 364, as amended by section 9 of the act of 7 Sept. 1944, 58 Stat. 730, officers are entitled to mileage at the rate of eight cents per mile "when traveling under competent orders without troops, including travel . . . from last station to home in connection with relief from active duty." Section 3 of said Pay Readjustment Act, as amended by section 7 of the said act of 7 Sept. 1944, permits the advance payment of mileage to reserve officers "for their return home . . . computed from the place of release to the place from which ordered to active duty without regard to actual performance of travel." Also, authority is contained in said section 12, for the furnishing of transportation at Government expense to dependents of officers who are ordered to make a permanent change of station, and a permanent change of station is defined therein as including "the change from last station to home in connection with retirement, relief from active duty, or transfer to a Reserve component." It is well established that the "home" to which reference is made in the foregoing and other similar provisions of law is the home of record at the time the officer is ordered to active duty. 19 Comp. Gen. 731, 24 Id. 291; article 8070-1, of the Navy Travel Instructions. A subsequent change of home address after entry into the service can add nothing to an officer's right to mileage, or transportation of dependents, upon release from active duty. Since it appears clear that your home of record at the time you were ordered to active duty was at Detroit, Michigan, there is no authority for reimbursement of expenses of travel of your wife to your later selected home at San Diego. Accordingly, the amount allowed in the settlement of 10 July was correctly computed on the basis of the distance from Cleveland to Detroit, and upon review, such settlement is sustained.

"The record shows that you were allowed $196.59 by General Accounting Office settlement of 25 Jan. 1950, as mileage from your last station at Cleveland, to Los Angeles, the place from which you were ordered to active duty. While section 3 of the said Pay Readjustment Act of 1942, as amended, authorizes the payment of advanced mileage to reserve officers upon release from active duty, computed on the distance from the place of release to the place from which ordered to active duty, such mileage is payable "for their return home," and in the event the place from which ordered to active duty is farther from the place of release from active duty than is the home of record at the time of entry on active duty, mileage is limited to the distance to the home. 24 Comp. Gen. 291; article 9001-2a(2)(a) of the Navy Travel Instructions. Since the distance from Cleveland to Detroit appears to be 164 miles, you were entitled only to $13.12 as mileage in connection with your release from active duty. Hence, it appears that you are indebted to the United States in the sum of $183.47 by reason of overpayment of mileage on said settlement of 25 Jan. 1950, and that amount should be remitted to this Office by check or money order made payable to the Treasurer of the United States."

U. S. COAST GUARD

A NEW procurement program for reserve officers under which successful civilian, ex-and active-service applicants will be designated officer candidates and assigned to a 16-week intensive training course at the Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn., has been initiated. Civilian applicants, whose commissions would be in the Coast Guard Reserve, must not reach 26 before 1 Jan. 1952, and hold a bachelors degree from an accredited college.

Former enlisted personnel of the Coast Guard, Coast Guard Reserve, Navy and Naval Reserve must be less than 31 on application and hold a bachelors degree, or have had two years of active service and at least two years of college or equivalent professional or technical training.

The program is also open to qualified enlisted men presently on active duty, who would receive regular commissions for temporary service.

Warrant Officers

On 14 June, the Secretary of the Treasury amended the Regulations for Distribution of Warrant Officers in pay grades by authorizing a computation of commissioned warrant officers to be made at least once a year in lieu of on 1 Jan. of each year. This will appear in a forthcoming Personnel Circular amending PC 55-49. The change permits more frequent computations in order to reflect expansion in pay grades W-4 and W-3 as well as W-2 and W-1.

Retirements

A Board to Examine and Consider the Performance of Duty of Certain Officers was approved recently, and as a result the following personnel formerly retired as enlisted men have been advanced on the retired list effective from 1 Oct. 1949.

Ordnance School Graduation

Capt. Robert H. Smith, USN, commander of the newly-activated Naval Training Center at Bainbridge, Md., was the principal speaker at an Army Officers' graduation held recently at The Ordnance School, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.

Other speakers were Maj. Gen. E. E. MacMorland, USA, Aberdeen Proving Ground commander, and Col. Samuel Smellow, assistant commandant of The Ordnance School. The ceremony concluded with presentation of diplomas to 43 Army and allied officers. Chaplain (Maj.) A. H. Giuliano opened the program with an invocation and concluded with a benediction.

The 20 graduating members of the Ordnance officer advanced class were:

Lieutenant Colonels Reginald C. Barber, Cornell D. Booth, Harold E. Cone, John H. Davis, Burleigh B. Drummond, Joseph G. Duncan, Oliver M. Hirsch, Milton Jarrold, Edmund L. Klint, Paul H. Krauss, Josiah S. Kurtz, Charles C. Latham, jr., Willis O. McDaniel, Ralph M. McMahon, William J. Parsons, Lear P. Titard and John M. Woestenburg; and Majors Sam E. Cumpston, Edward B. Krainik and Frederick E. Williams, jr.

Allied officers were Majors Elpidio P. Duque and Cesar U. Monemayor of the Philippine Army and Captain Noel Chauvin of France.

Graduates of the Ordnance company officer refresher course were: Captains Anthony J. Alberti, John J. Bowen and Frank A. Ralph; and First Lieutenants Samuel Boyd, Stanley J. Bruckman, William G. Carpenter, James G. Germanson, Jerald A. Henrickson, Ernest B. Linquest, Richard W. Mitchell, Steve C. Owen, jr., Allen C. Robinson, Warren Smith, Edwin S. Tipple and Henry L. White. Also Second Lieutenants Richard L. Morrisette, Frank S. Quattrocchi and Malcolm A. Reynolds; and Warrant Officers Junior Grade Thomas E. Beauchamp and Richard K. Marcum.

Adopt Dental Report

The Department of Defense Armed Forces Medical Policy Council has announced standardization of a single dental report form for use by the three military departments.

The new form is designed to present a clearer picture of the professional and administrative work load at each military, naval and air installation to which dental personnel are assigned. It will replace three major forms and a number of lesser reports. Its use is prescribed for all military dental facilities by 1 Aug.

Standardization of this report, which will show the number of dental patients, the scope of examinations and treatment, and the number of professional and administrative personnel assigned to the facility, followed an agreement on the dental classification of individuals and specifications for conducting dental examinations.

Reporting dates for all dental facilities will be the last day of the month.

Gen. Gallagher To U. S.

Brig. Gen. Philip E. Gallagher, USA, departing EUROM Director of Military Posts, was honored at a farewell retreat parade and review at EUROM Headquarters in Heidelberg recently.

General Gallagher has been named as Assistant Commander of the Sixth Armored Division at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri.

As Director of Military Posts in EUROM, General Gallagher eliminated the former military district system and placed all Military Posts directly under the Command of EUROM Headquarters, allowing more streamlined administration which resulted in uniform and improved standards. His frequent Command inspections throughout the U. S. Area of Responsibility are credited with contributing greatly toward increasing command-wide efficiency.

In addition to his duties as Director of Military Posts, General Gallagher was designated as Commanding General of the U. S. Army Airlift Support Command in April 1949, during the Blockade of Berlin. In that assignment he organized ground elements supporting the airlift under one central command group and achieved more efficient handling and shipping of all supplies to Berlin.

Munitions Board V. Chairman

Appointment of Robert M. Hatfield, jr., a California engineer, as Vice Chairman for Government Agencies of the Department of Defense Munitions Board, and Executive Assistant to the Chairman of the Board, is announced by Chairman J. D. Small.

Mr. Hatfield, who will serve without compensation, is the western general manager of Combustion Engineering Superheater, Inc., in Glendale. He also has served recently as the chief of the Power Equipment Division of the National Production Administration. During World War II, he was Deputy Vice Chairman for Production of the War Production Board, and previously was a Naval Officer.

To Command QM Depot

Brig. Gen. Richard B. Thornton, USA, who has been special assistant to the Army Quartermaster General since October 1950, has been appointed commanding general of the Philadelphia Quartermaster Depot and will assume command on 23 July.

General Thornton will succeed Brig. Gen. Hugh B. Hester, who recently resigned from active service.

The Philadelphia Depot is the oldest Quartermaster Corps installation in the United States and includes, in addition to a large storage mission, the Quartermaster Corps textile research laboratory and control over the manufacture and purchase of insignia, flags, standards, and similar supplies.

Award LST Contracts

The Navy Department has awarded contracts for construction of two landing ships tank (LST's) to the Bath Iron Works, Me.

Contracts for construction of 13 additional LST's in the 1952 shipbuilding program will be awarded by negotiation, on a competitive basis, in the near future.

INDUSTRY * FINANCE * MARITIME

Head Air Procurement Dist.

Brig. Gen. William M. Morgan, USAF, Vice-Commander of the Western Air Defense Force at Hamilton AFB, Calif., for the past 18 months, assumed command of the Western Air Procurement District in Los Angeles on 10 July.

General Morgan succeeds Brig. Gen. Donald F. Stace, USAF. The Western Air Procurement District covers seven western states of Arizona, California, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Utah and Washington.

In his new post, General Morgan will be responsible for the monitoring of Air Force contracts for the procurement of all aircraft, allied equipment and material in the seven western states. He will be under direction of the Directorate of Procurement & Industrial Planning of the Air Materiel Command, which maintains headquarters at Wright-Patterson Field, Dayton, Ohio.

ATA Regional Office

Appointment of H. L. Roberts as manager of the newly-created regional office of the Air Transport Association, located in Ft. Worth, Tex., has been announced by Brig. Gen. Milton W. Arnold, VP-Operations of the ATA. The fourth regional office covers the states of Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Florida.

Mr. Roberts, a former member of the Army Air Corps, has been active in aviation since 1927. He will act as coordinator between the scheduled airlines serving this region, and Federal, state, municipal and National Defense agencies, as well as serving as the airline representative on numerous committees concerned with aviation operational matters.

Plane Production Capacity

The major emphasis of the aircraft industry now is to expand production facilities rather than to produce the greatest number of aircraft, according to Admiral DeWitt C. Ramsey, USN, (Ret.), president of the Aircraft Industries Association.

"Let me emphasize that," states Admiral Ramsey in "Planes," the AIA publication, "We are now building productive capacity rather than a tremendous number of airplanes which could become obsolescent before there is any requirement for their use."

In his article, Admiral Ramsey said:

"It is accepted by military strategists that in event of war an enemy's first objective would be swift aerial destruction of our centers of population and production. It is the responsibility, therefore, of America's air power to be ready for any emergency—ready for sustained defense and sustained attack. We must have adequate resources to provide equipment for both until the enemy is brought to a decisive standstill."

"To fulfill these obligations from an industrial standpoint, we have two very definite objectives: First an adequate number of first line planes coming off the production line at all times to give us strong air arms in being and to avoid crippling obsolescence. Second, to build up the capacity for aircraft production at a high rate of speed, capacity that can be called upon for instant expansion if it is needed. * * *

"Plant expansion, tooling, materials, manpower training and a multitude of supply pipelines all must be developed in this base broadening procedure. If war comes, we intend to be ready for the long pull, as well as the quick retaliation."

"Broadening of the base also is accomplishing the purpose of making the nation's aircraft production capacity relatively less vulnerable to aerial attack."

"Aircraft deliveries, of course, have been accelerated and expanded since hostilities began in Korea. But, although the appropriations for both 1951 and 1952 exceed all previous years except 1942 and 1944, the actual rate of increase in aircraft production is less than 50% of the rate of increase made by the industry in World War II. * * *

"Preparedness is costly and the taxpayers are entitled to know what they are getting for their tax dollar. It is important to realize that currently more than $26 billion is allocated for production of airplanes, including the sums requested in the 1952 budget. This represents 40% of the total money scheduled for procurement of military weapons of all types for the military services. A substantial portion of this sum for the procurement of aircraft and related equipment is scheduled for facilities expansion."

"In addition to government-provided funds for this purpose, many millions of dollars have been invested by the aircraft firms themselves in new tooling, new equipment, additional floor space, and in research."

Admiral Ramsey

Army Cargo Vessel Contract

A contract has been let for the first steel Transportation Corps vessel constructed on the West Coast since the war.

The $1,446,685.86 award went to Puget Sound Bridge and Dredge Company of Seattle for a harbor and inland waterway dry cargo vessel for the Army's Transportation Corps. The vessel will be capable of overseas delivery under its own power and making short coastwise and inter-island trips.

Design of the vessel, which is intended to carry cargo deadweight of approximately 1,000-tons at a speed of about 12-knots, is being developed under the direction of the Transportation Research and Development Station, commanded by Col. Richard D. Meyer, at Ft. Eustis, Va.

The ship is one of a group of three vessels of the same basic hull form. These ships will operate at the end of overseas transportation lines for transferring supplies to advance bases located in remote harbors and inland waterways in the theater of operations. The requirement for such small ships in direct support of Army combat operations is one of the lessons learned in Korea. As a direct result, design was pushed to completion in record time, and construction contracts let nearly two years ahead of schedule.

Naval architects at the Research and Development Station said the other vessels in the group are a refrigerated cargo vessel to be built by Higgins, Inc., of New Orleans and a liquid cargo vessel by Liberty Dry Dock Company of New York.

Schedule T-36 Production

Beechcraft's production of the USAF T-36 has been assigned to the Wichita facilities of the Beech Aircraft Corporation.

Having recently notified Beech Aircraft that its design was the winner in a competition for the development of a new type twin-engine trainer, and having awarded Beech an official production contract for an undisclosed quantity, the Air Force through its Director of Procurement and Industrial Planning, Maj. Gen. Orval R. Cook, has made arrangements to schedule military production in such a manner as to provide a steady continuity of employment through 1953 for the Wichita employees of Beechcraft.

Nuclear Propulsion Project

Mr. D. R. Shoults, director of engineering for Aro, Inc., the firm which manages and operates the Air Force's Arnold Engineering Development Center in Tennessee, has been appointed director of the General Electric Company's Aircraft Nuclear Propulsion project for the Air Force and Atomic Energy Commission. The project is engaged in the further development of an atom-powered engine for airplanes.

Mr. C. W. LaPierre, manager of GE's Aircraft Gas Turbine Divisions, who made the announcement, said that the project will have headquarters at the company's Lockland, Ohio, turbojet research, engineering, and manufacturing center.

Rest and Recreation

strength that any considerable number of men could be spared from committed units for leave purposes. Thus, it was not until late December that the first group arrived in Japan to officially launch R&R. This consisted of 30 officers and 172 enlisted men from the 24th Infantry Division, which had been the first American unit to reach Korea. The following day, 42 officers and 158 enlisted men of the First Cavalry Division arrived. The R&R program was well under way.

The major problem in planning for this operation was the availability of leave spaces. The program envisaged a return of 200 men a day and since the five days' leave was to be exclusive of travel time, there would be need for billeting facilities to accommodate 1,200 men on leave status. It was anticipated that leave personnel during the initial phase would be comprised largely of former members of the occupation who would desire space in or near their previous stations in Japan, whereas personnel arriving in Japan later in the process of the program would probably be strangers to Japan and would desire to spend their free time in the cosmopolitan Tokyo-Yokohama area.

A survey of billeting and recreational facilities revealed adequate spaces both at Special Services leave hotels and in camp areas, but the metropolitan situation has always been and continues to be critical.

The processing of an individual from the time he leaves his unit in Korea until his return is one requiring many steps and the utmost cooperation of all groups and units concerned.

Primarily, R&R is the responsibility of the Special Services Section, JLC. However, G-1 Section, JLC, is directly interested. Transportation from and to Korea has been provided by the Air Force's Combat Cargo Command who have been doing a splendid job throughout the program.

From the moment Korean veterans on R&R reach Japan they are considered and treated like the VIP's they are. Waiting buses whisk them from the airfield to a reception center. There their weapons are first stored and then the men are given a full course steak dinner of the finest cuts of meat cooked to the individual's taste. The dinner is followed by a brief orientation which is, in turn, followed by a hot shower, medical checkup and a visit to the finance office for pay. The soldier turns in all his combat clothing in which he arrived and is issued a full Class "A" uniform, complete with insignia including the shoulder patch of his Korean unit. While on leave he also wears the Korean service identification. This is a light blue strip of cloth approximately two inches wide bearing a silhouette of Korea in darker blue. This identifies all R&R men and assures them the extra courtesies that everyone in Japan wants to extend to them. While he is on leave, the individual's combat clothing is thoroughly cleaned and renovated. His weapon is also checked and given a thorough cleaning.

An outstanding feature of the processing is the careful timing with which it has been worked out. The entire process, from arrival at a reception center until the individual sets forth to begin his leave, takes only about two hours. Plans have been worked out so that there is none of the familiar "waiting in line." For example, the individual is issued his leave uniform before he takes his shower and shave. By the time he finishes these the uniform has had minor alterations, his chevrons and insignia have been added and the uniform is ready for wear. The processing even includes the issuance of a railroad ticket if the individual has elected to spend his leave beyond the vicinity of the reception center. From the reception center the men are transported to the area of their choice for billeting and where their leave begins.

Throughout their stay every existing recreational facility is made available to these men. In addition, there are many special entertainments and recreational features especially organized for their pleasure. They are welcome guests in all clubs, restaurants, snack bars, service clubs, hotels, sports areas and everywhere else that personnel gather for recreation. Each man carries one copy of his leave orders as a pass and he is subject to the minimum of restriction in his movements during the time of his leave.

The attitude of all personnel connected with operation of R&R is that nothing is too good for these men. This feeling is shared by all occupation personnel in Japan who universally go out of their way to make the leave associations pleasant for these men. Even the Japanese are imbued with this spirit and it is reflected in their treatment of these veterans.

The municipal governor of Tokyo held a special reception in honor of the 25,000th R&R man at which the soldier was presented with a large key to the city.

Although the program was originally planned by Army personnel for ground soldiers and marines, it has since been extended to include Navy and Air Force personnel. The original planning provided for a proportion of the daily allocation to include the British and Australian forces. Other United Nations nationals have been participating as the roll call of nations fighting communism in Korea has been augmented.

The program has been an overwhelming success. The best indication of how it is appreciated by the men is the fact that the AWOL rate for "R&R" personnel is less than one half of one per cent. Praises, both verbal and written, from the men who have participated have been extravagant to the extreme. An airborne officer who accompanied a contingent of men from the 187th Regimental Combat Team on leave later wrote "Everyone concerned with the program did so much more than their job demanded . . . I was most impressed by the unstinting effort of everyone toward the single end of making our stay as enjoyable as possible . . . The morale of the men who have returned is so high and their enthusiasm so infectious and voluble that the program affects even the men not attending."

A jointly signed letter from 21 members of the carrier USS Philippine Sea stated in part, "A mere letter of thanks seems pitifully inadequate . . . to show our appreciation for the splendid courtesy and hospitality extended us . . . We were thoroughly satisfied in every detail from the tiniest to the greatest . . . We'll treasure all the golden memories of the hours we had."

While all this has been gratifying to the personnel operating R&R, it is mainly for the satisfaction they derive from knowing that they have been able to serve so well the men who have been carrying on for all of us in the vanguard of the fight against Communism.

The men who have been on R&R have literally become restored men. They have arrived in Japan war-weary, silent and often near exhaustion.

The warmth of their welcome and the complete ease of five days makes a visible transformation. The luxury of a fine hotel, the security of the rest period, the change of clothing and atmosphere, the telephone call to the family back home, or the personal association for those whose families are in Japan—all these, and the other features of the leave break the tensions built up in combat. The men return to Korea with their bodies and spirits renewed. They have reacquainted themselves with the things for which they fight and their renewed vigor increases their alertness and resistance and thus, their chances for survival in battle.

Capt. Brush to War College

Capt. Frederick J. Brush, USN, operations officer on the Staff of Commander Fleet Air Wing 2 at the Naval Air Station, Barbers Point, Oahu, T. H. has received orders to report to the President of the U. S. Naval War College, Newport, R. I., for duty involving flying under instruction in a strategy and tactics course.

Captain Brush formerly served as Executive Officer of the Naval Air Station, Jacksonville, Fla.

Commands Second MAW

edly the case that the great preponderance of service personnel were those who have served in peacetime and were, therefore, considered regular members of the Armed Forces.

"However, since last year with the great increase in the size of our Armed Services, there has been a proportionate increase in the number of reservists and draftees who have been called upon to serve their nation in this period of emergency. Under these circumstances, it seems only proper that the principle of tax exemption which prevailed for members of the Armed Forces during the last war should be reapplied in some form during the present emergency.

"The specific type of exemption is, of course, a matter for the Committee to work out during its deliberations. However, the system of increased personal exemptions set forth in S. 891 seems to have advantages over the flat annual exemption which prevailed during the last conflict.

"In any case, the important thing to us as co-sponsors of this measure is that all members of the Armed Forces on active duty during the present crisis should be permitted this small measure of tax relief, considering their services to the nation.

"With kindest personal regards,
"Yours very sincerely,
"Herbert H. Lehman."

Chas. L. Black Joins AIA

Charles L. Black, former managing editor of Flying magazine, has joined the Washington staff of Hill and Knowlton, Inc., public relations counsel, and will devote full time to activities with the Aircraft Industries Association. Announcement of the appointment was made by Avery McBee, Hill and Knowlton vice-president and director of public relations of AIA.

Beginning his career as a newspaperman, Mr. Black has written extensively on all phases of aviation. He was a war correspondent in Korea, and his work, "The Truth About Air Support," is required reading in the tactical aviation courses of the National War College. During military service in World War II, he served as historical editor and prepared features on combat experiences. Mrs. Black, who moved to Washington recently with her husband, was formerly an associate editor of Flying.

John Paul Jones Relics

The world's most complete collection of John Paul Jones items that of the late John L. Senior, noted lawyer and manufacturer, was presented to the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., this week by Mrs. John L. Senior of Lenox, Mass., as a gift in memory of her husband.

The collection, consisting of scores of John Paul Jones relics, includes the original commission signed 10 Oct. 1776, by John Hancock, President of the Continental Congress at Philadelphia. It was issued to John Paul Jones as a "Captain in the Navy of the United States." Many valuable manuscripts, historic documents, autographed letters signed by John Paul Jones, medals and other relics pertaining to the great naval hero, and the John L. Senior Library on John Paul Jones, were included in the Academy's newly acquired collection.

The collection has been on loan to the Academy for a number of years, on display at the Museum and Crypt of John Paul Jones, where it will now remain to serve as an inspiration to the Academy's midshipmen and as a memorial to its collector.
